Plastic Bags Ban Proposed

By SCOTT JACKSON

Legislation that would prohibit Quincy retailers from using disposable plastic bags is now pending before the City Council.

Mayor Thomas Koch and Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci introduced the ordinance to ban the use of disposable plastic bags at the council's June 17 meeting. The bill was sent to the council's ordinance and oversight committees, the latter of which Palmucci chairs, for discussion in the fall once councillors return from their summer recess.

Koch had said he would introduce an ordinance to ban the use of disposable plastic bags during his State of the City address in January, citing the impact discarded plastics have on the environment, particularly the world's oceans.

"It is the purpose of this ordinance to achieve a reduction in the use of disposable plastic shopping bags by retail establishments in the city, thereby advancing solid waste reduction, protecting marine ecosystems, protecting waterways and reducing greenhouse gas

Revolving Fund For Sidewalk, Road Repair

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors approved a new revolving fund to be utilized by the Department of Public Works for road and sidewalk repair.

Councillors approved the creation of the fund, requested by Mayor Thomas Koch, on June 17 in a unanimous vote.

The purpose of the revolving fund is to charge National Grid and other utility companies for work the city and its contractors complete to repair roadways and sidewalks affected by the utilities' work. The Department of Public Works will be allowed to use money

Council Commends Bette Campbell

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council recently recognized Bette Campbell for her stewardship of Quincy Access Television since its inception more than 20 years ago.

Campbell received the commendation at the City Council's meeting on June 17. She had served as the executive director at Quincy Access TV since November 1996 after working for Continental Cablevision, Quincy's previous cable provider, before the city switched to the public access model.

Campbell retired from her position on May 31, her 70th birthday.

City Council President Brad Croall said Campbell

was a tremendous leader during her tenure at QATV.

"We're here tonight to reflect on quite a career by our colleague and friend Bette Campbell, the director of Quincy Access Television, the organization that helps distribute all of the fun topics that are discussed here as well as a myriad of other topics throughout the city," Croall said.

"I've come to know Bette for probably the last 10 or so years. The work that she's put forward has been truly amazing, but I think even more important tremendously impactful, from covering the City Council meetings to being nationally recognized. Bette has been a tremendous leader."

Councillor Noel DiBona thanked Campbell for her service to the public.

"You're going to be dearly missed. It's going to be some shoes to fill," he said. I just want to thank you for your service to the city. It's grown so much, and that team is going to keep it going."

Campbell credited QATV's staff and volunteers for helping make the public access channel what it is today.

"QATV is a team... We couldn't do it if we didn't have teamwork," she said. "As you know, we started at the broom closet at Parks and Rec. on Nov. 17, 1996.

"Since that time we've won four national awards for overall excellence and four regional awards for overall excellence, as well as many individual awards... Those came to us through the hard work of the volunteers that come to us and produce television. They're all dedicated and loyal and couldn't be better. They provide everything that you see from information to news to schoolboy sports. Just about everything that goes on is done not only by the staff but also by the many volunteers and we thank them.

"Nov. 17, 1996, we started in a broom closet, and I am very pleased I brought this organization to where it is today."

Quincy Elks Scholarship Awards Ceremony Thursday

The Quincy Lodge of Elks #943 will hold its annual Scholarship Awards Ceremony on Thursday, June 27.

More than 50 college-bound high school seniors will receive an award and financial assistance this year from the Elks.

Guest speaker for this year's ceremony is Michael Bellotti, president of Quincy College and former sheriff of Norfolk County. Bellotti will address the recipients and present their awards alongside Exalted Ruler Frank Bertoni and state Rep. Bruce Ayers, chairman of the Elks Scholarship Committee.

The ceremony will be held at the Tirrell Room and is open to all members of the Quincy Lodge of Elks, as well as the scholarship recipients and their families. The event begins at 7 p.m. Dinner will be served.

For more information on the Quincy Lodge of Elks scholarship program contact Bruce Ayers at brucej.ayers@yahoo.com.

Plastic Bags Ban Proposed

emissions," Koch and Palmucci's legislation states.

"This ordinance seeks to reduce the number of plastic bags that are being used, discarded and littered, and to promote the use of reusable check-out bags and recyclable paper bags."

The ordinance would ban all retail-checkout bags made from plastic, including bags made from petroleum or natural gas and those made from biological sources such as corn or other plants. Degradable and biodegradable plastic bags would be among those banned.

Violators of the ban would first receive a written warning, which would include a 14-day period to correct the violation. A $50 fine would be charged for the second violation, followed a $100 fine for subsequent violations. The ordinance would be enforceable by police officers, agents of the Quincy Health Department and members of the Board of License Commissioners.

Reusable bags — defined as machine-washable bags made from durable materials like cotton, polyester or polypropylene with a minimum lifetime of 125 uses and capable of carrying at least 22 pounds — would be exempt, as would recyclable paper bags, provided they are 100 percent recyclable and made from 40 percent post-consumer recycled content. Such paper bags would need be labelled as "recyclable" and "made from 40 percent post-consumer recycled content."

Certain plastic bags would be exempt from the ban as well, including bags used to carry produce, meat, seafood or other food items to the point of the sale inside a store or to prevent the items inside from coming into contact with other food. Newspaper bags and laundry and dry-cleaning bags would also be exempt.

More than 80 communities across Massachusetts have enacted bans on single-use plastic bags in recent years. Boston is among those communities that have done so; its ban began phasing in late last year.

inside the revolving fund to pay for road and sidewalk repair without seeking council approval for each allocation. The department can spend up to $350,000 from the fund each fiscal year, beginning with the fiscal year that starts July 1.

Commissioner of Public Works Al Grazioso said National Grid's work on the city's roadways is sometimes inadequate.

"When they do work on the roadways, sometimes it isn't up to par. We've gone back in the past and we've repaired their trenches, so we're going to charge them for that," he said.

In addition, Grazioso said the city might have its contractors handle roadwork on major thoroughfares after National Grid projects, instead of having the utility and its contractors do so.

"If we know they're going to do a main road, we may look at that and say it's better for our contractors to do the work," Grazioso said. "We can control it better. We don't always trust some of the contractors they may be using."

Other communities do the same thing, the commissioner added.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said he wished the city could do more to hold National Grid accountable for maintenance of its infrastructure in Quincy.

"I support this. I wish there was something more that we could do in terms of National Grid's maintenance," he said. "We went through this with Hurricane Irene. Half the city was without power for three or four days and it was because they had cut back on their maintenance crews that do routine maintenance in an effort to save money and increase profits."

Koch: Residents Will See 5% Reduction In Flood Insurance Bills

Mayor Thomas Koch announces residents in flood zones will see a 5 percent reduction in their flood insurance bills following an upgrade in how the Federal Government rates the City's flood-protection planning and infrastructure.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency, which manages the federal flood insurance program, increased what is called the Community Rating System (CRS) score to a rating obtained by only five other communities in Massachusetts. No city or town in Massachusetts has a higher rating.

Factors considered by FEMA include the broad range of flood-protection projects undertaken by the City over the last several years; its years-long program of helping individual homeowners obtain appropriate elevation certificates for their properties; and developing a comprehensive process across City departments to work through permitting and other flood-zone related issues with residents.

The rating upgrade will benefit nearly 4,000 homeowners across the City who are required by federal law to carry flood insurance. The average policy owner will save $150 annually. June is the first full month this lowered Rate Class will impact policies, and policy holders should contact their individual insurance agency as policy renewals approach.

The upgrade is the result of several years of work by City departments working closely together with the civil engineering firm Woodard & Curran.

10,000 Attend Fourth Annual PorchFest

By SCOTT JACKSON

Some 10,000 people attended the fourth annual PorchFest Quincy event on Saturday, listening to more than 100 musical acts perform throughout three of the city's neighborhoods.

"It was a great day," said Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain, one of the event's organizers. "The weather held out. All in all, it was a successful fourth annual PorchFest."

PorchFest featured a variety of musical acts performing on porches and in yards and driveways in the Merrymount, Squantum and Wollaston Hill neighborhoods. Cain, who stopped by locations in Wollaston Hill and Squantum, said those neighborhoods were lively Saturday.

"On Wollaston Hill, there were countless people walking in the streets," he said, noting there were at least 600 people in the area of Theresa Road and Myopia Road alone.

"Squantum was quite lively, holding up their end."

Cain said there were a number of residents this year who set up lemonade and hot dog stands as part of the event.

"There was a lot more community activity — kids selling hot dogs and lemonade — which was cool," Cain said.

The organizers have tried to get food trucks involved, Cain said, but that can be difficult because some operators want money up front to come to the event.

"People end up having cookouts and supplying their own food," he said.

Cain said he was grateful for the support of the Quincy Police Department during the event.

"Keeping it safe, keeping it fun, that's what it is about," he said.

Should you go back to a 30-year mortgage?

People are thinking about mortgages differently. Right now we're seeing borrowers who went with shorter terms going back to a 30-year loan. Some are tapping their equity for home improvements, college tuition or to consolidate other debt at a locked-in guaranteed low rate. Others just want a more comfortable monthly payment, less stress and more cash flow. It works because mortgage rates are still so low. And if you want, you can always pay the new 30-year loan off more aggressively, but you don't have to. Would a new 30-year mortgage make sense for you? GRADUATE GEMOLOGIST

AS RARE AS IT IS BEAUTIFUL

Because ruby, July's birthstone, is among the rarest of gemstones, it is pricier than an emerald, diamond, or sapphire of the same quality. Moreover, when one takes into consideration that this colored gemstone is as durable as it is beautiful (second only to diamond in terms of hardness), it is easy to see why ruby sells for such a premium. The most prized examples of ruby come from Myanmar (formerly known as Burma), with a clear, medium red color that somewhat approximates that of a traffic light. Those that come from Thailand, the world's primary source of ruby, are brownish red. If ruby from either of these sources is above your means, consider red spinel. It is an excellent stand-in.

The ancients believed that ruby had the power of prophecy. It was also said to restore energy and vitality as well as cure liver problems and counteract poison. While we make no guarantees for the mystical properties of ruby, we do believe it has the ability to captivate. Come see our selection of this gemstone that was once reserved only for wearing by kings. Matthew Summering Attending Marquette Matthew John Summering of Quincy, a recent graduate of Boston College High School, will be attending Marquette University in Milwaukee in the fall.

Summering graduated B.C. High with academic honors and was a member of the National Honor Society.

The college he will attend was listed incorrectly in the June 20 edition of The Sun because of incorrect information provided by the high school.

MATTHEW SUMMERING

MA Dept. Of Public Health Offers Summer Safety Advice

With the arrival of summer and activities increasingly moving outdoors, the Massachusetts Department of Public Health (DPH) reminds families, caregivers, summer program leaders, and camp counselors to take extra precautions to keep young children safe this summer.

Water and Pool Safety

Drowning is a leading cause of death among young children, both nationally and in Massachusetts, with backyard pools posing the highest risk for children under the age of 5. The signs of drowning may be hard to detect, with very little splashing or cries for help. Once a child is in danger, it can take as few as 20 seconds to fall below the water and only minutes to drown.

To help prevent water-related injury and drowning:

- Children should be supervised in and around water at all times.
- Whenever infants and toddlers are in or around water, including the bathtub, an adult should be within an arm's length at all times providing "touch supervision."
- Do not drink alcohol while supervising children.
- Install a four-sided pool fence that completely separates the house and play area of the yard from the pool area. Consider automatic door locks or alarms to prevent access.
- After the children are done swimming, secure the pool so they cannot get back in.
- Remove floats, balls and other toys from the pool after use so that children are not tempted to reach for them.
- Keep rescue equipment (such as a shepherd's hook or life preserver) and a phone by the pool.
- For children who cannot swim, use a U.S. Coast Guard-approved life jacket. Do not use air-filled or foam toys, such as "water wings," "noodles," or inner-tubes, in place of life jackets. These toys are not designed to keep swimmers safe.

• Learn cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR). The Red Cross offers a variety of CPR/AED, first aid, lifeguard, swimming, water safety, and emergency preparedness training. For information on classes, visit <http://www.redcross.org/mo2s>.

Additionally, when swimming in public swimming areas:

- Select swimming sites that have lifeguards, whenever possible, and swim only in designated swimming areas.
- Always swim with a buddy.

Car Safety

In the summer months in New England, the inside of a vehicle can be a very dangerous place for children left inside. The temperature in a closed car in the summer sun can rise quickly and the vehicle can become a deadly place for a child, left even for just a moment.

To keep young children safe in and around cars:

- Never leave children alone in a parked vehicle, even when they are asleep or restrained, and even if the windows are open.
- Always check inside the vehicle - front and back - before locking the door and walking away.
- If a child is missing, check your vehicle first, including the trunk.
- Do things to remind yourself that a child is in the vehicle, such as placing your purse or briefcase in the back seat so you will check the back seat when you leave the vehicle.
- Always lock your car and keep the keys out of children's reach.
- Ensure adequate supervision when children are playing in areas near parked motor vehicles.
- Ask your childcare provider to call you right away if your child does not show up for childcare.

If you see a child alone in a hot vehicle, call the police. If they are in distress due to heat, get them out as quickly as possible and call 911 immediately.

Remember, all children ages 12 and under should ride in the back seat, properly restrained, even during quick trips to the corner market. Infants and toddlers should remain in rear-facing car seats until they reach the highest weight or height allowed by their car safety seat manufacturer. At a minimum, children should ride rear-facing until they are at least one year old and weigh at least 20 pounds. You can find more information on child passenger safety on the DPH website.

Window Safety

Falls are the leading cause of injury to children, and falls from windows involving young children are especially serious. Window falls are preventable. Screens are not strong enough to protect children from falling out of windows. In order to prevent window falls, parents and caregivers should:

- Keep low furniture - and anything a child can climb on - away from windows.
- Open windows from the top, not the bottom, when possible.
- Lock all unopened doors and windows.
- Be sure children are always supervised.
- Install quick-release window guards which can be found in most hardware stores.

To learn more about childhood injury prevention, visit the DPH injury prevention and control program. Additional tips can be found on the US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's website.

MassDOT July 4 Holiday Travel Advisory

Plan Ahead, Utilize 'Real Time' Travel Tools, Use Public Transportation

The Massachusetts Department of Transportation (MassDOT) advises holiday travelers to plan ahead, utilize MassDOT's many "real time" travel tools and use public transportation if possible to reach their destinations during the upcoming July 4 holiday period.

"We are encouraging anyone traveling for the Fourth to check public transportation schedules and use 'real time' technology tools if driving to decide on the best routes and departure times," said Transportation Secretary and CEO Stephanie Pollack. "We want everyone to have a safe holiday and are issuing this friendly reminder to put cell phones away while driving, stay sober if getting behind the wheel, allow extra room for bicyclists and pedestrians and be considerate of other travelers if roads are busy."

"The best advice we can give anyone traveling for the Fourth is plan ahead," said Highway Administrator Jonathan Gulliver. "With July 4 falling on a Thursday this year, many people may be leaving home on Friday, June 28, and returning on Sunday, July 7, so travelers should get up-to-the minute information on public transit schedules and drive times so they aren't caught off-guard when setting out for destinations. We want everyone to have an easy trip and a safe trip and encourage people to be patient with each other as many people will be moving around in an effort to attend events and to enjoy some vacation time."

MassDOT is taking steps to facilitate the flow of traffic during the holiday and will be postponing scheduled roadway construction effective at 5 a.m., Wednesday, July 3, with scheduled construction activities resuming at the normal start of business on Monday, July 8. In addition, the High Occupancy Lane (HOV) between Quincy and Boston on I-93 will open early for the afternoon commute on Tuesday, July 2 at 2 p.m. and on Wednesday, July 3 at 1 p.m. The HOV lane will be closed all day on Thursday, July 4, and all day on Friday, July 5. It will then re-open during regularly scheduled hours on Monday, July 8.

The Summer Tunnel Swing Lane will open on Wednesday, July 3 at 10 a.m. and will close on Monday, July 8 at 5 a.m.

Free coffee will be served at the 18 MassDOT service plazas from 10 p.m., Thursday, July 4, through 5 a.m., Friday, July 5. The plazas serving free coffee include 11 service plazas along I-90 plus plazas along Route 3 in Plymouth, Route 128 in Beverly, Route 128/I-95 in Newton and Lexington, Route 6 in Barnstable, and the Route 24 northbound and southbound plazas.

For traffic and road conditions, drivers may use the following options to make decisions:

• Download MassDOT's GoTime mobile app and view real-time traffic conditions.

• Dial 511 and select a route to hear real-time conditions on I-90 and other roads.

• Visit www.mass511.com, which provides real-time traffic and incident advisory information, and allows users to subscribe to text and email alerts for traffic conditions.

• Download Waze, the real-time traffic navigation app.

• Follow MassDOT on Twitter @MassDOT because motor vehicle incidents which impact traffic flow are generally mentioned in tweets if they occur on the state's major highways.

The MBTA has also released the following information regarding travel on Thursday, July 4:

• All MBTA service will

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS AN early 1920s postcard view of Wollaston Boulevard and the beach showing the Wollaston and Squantum Yacht Clubs in the distance. The picture was taken from the Linnell Bath Houses that were between today's Sachem Street and East Elm Avenue. You could rent a bathhouse for the season for $6 from Arthur Linnell who lived on Davis Street. When it was built in 1908, the roadway was only 24 feet wide with the expectation that it would need to be widened later. As can be seen here when automobiles became readily available in the 1920s, traffic and parking soon became a nightmare. Shortly after this picture was taken the Metropolitan Commission allowed angled parking on the beach's sand, but that significantly reduced the width of the beach at high tide. Finally, in 1926, the roadway was widened and a seawall was built to protect it. Tons more sand were added to also widen the beach. A view of the bathhouses along with other postcards can be seen on some of the interpretive signs along the beach.

Timothy Riley Nominated To U.S. Air Force Academy

Cong. Stephen F. Lynch announces the nomination of Timothy Riley of Quincy for appointment to the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Riley, the son of John and Deborah Riley, is a student at University of Massachusetts Lowell.

As part of his congressional duties, Lynch nominates exemplary candidates to the service academies each year.

"These candidates are the best of the best, and I am proud of their desire to serve our country," said Lynch. "The academies graduate leaders who will guide our nation into the future and the men and women who attend the academies are entrusted with the greatest responsibility - to serve and protect the United States of America."

Riley was highly recommended by his teachers at Archbishop Williams' High School and his professors at University of Massachusetts Lowell.

"He is a remarkable young man, and we are fortunate that young people like Tim are willing to serve our nation," Lynch said.

Lynch and his congressional liaison to the United States Service Academies, Bob Fowkes, examined each candidate's record of academic, athletic, and service achievements in addition to evaluating letters of recommendation. After an extensive review process and a personal interview, Riley was selected as someone whose scholastic record and community contributions elevated him to the top of a list of well-qualified candidates.

"There were many impressive candidates this year for the United States Air Force Academy," Lynch said. "Tim stood out as a young man of keen intelligence and strong character. He is a wonderful reflection of his parents, John and Deborah. The Riley family, the City of Quincy, and the entire Commonwealth of Massachusetts should be proud of Tim in this achievement."

Students interested in attending one of the United States Service Academies should contact Bob Fowkes in Congressman Lynch's Boston office at (617) 428-2000.

Yesterdays Correction

A date listed in the June 6th Quincy's Yesterdays column incorrectly stated the date of a plane crash that killed Army Air Force First Lt. Robert I. Nickerson.

First Lt. Nickerson died as a result of a plane crash in Scotland on May 24, 1944. The Yesterdays column incorrectly listed the date as May 25, 1944.

Nickerson, a Squantum resident, was the husband of the former Ruth Christianson of Mayflower Road. The original June 4, 1944 letter to his wife informing her of his death stated the date of May 25, but this was later confirmed to be in error by a letter of Official Statement of Death dated Oct. 3, 1949 from the Adjutant General of the Army acting under authority of the Secretary of the Army.

The official statement confirmed the date as May 24, 1944.

A copy of both documents is in the records of the Robert I. Nickerson American Legion Post 382 in Squantum which is named in honor of Lt. Nickerson.

Uncontested GOP Primary Slate

Massachusetts Republicans picked a slate that is expected to run uncontested in the Sept. 13 primary. The stakes are high because a U.S. Senate seat that has been Leverett Saltonstall's since 1945 will have a new occupant in 1967 and because the state's Constitutional Officers will be elected in November for four-year terms for the first time in the state's history.

The Republican nominees included Gov. John Volpe for re-election as governor; for Lt. Governor, Francis W. Sargent; Attorney General Edward W. Brooke for U.S. Senate, and Lt. Governor Elliot L. Richardson for Attorney General. The ticket was rounded out to include Raymond Trudel, Secretary of State, Joseph Fernandes for State Treasurer and John Buckley for State Auditor.

QUINCY HOSPITAL'S NURSING SCHOOL RE-ACCREDITED

The Quincy City Hospital Nursing School was accredited for another six-year period according to Hospital Director Harlan L. Paine, Jr. He said hospital officials have been notified of the accreditation, which has been continued by the National League for Nursing through 1972. The six-year accreditation is the maximum attainable. The League inspected the school's facilities in March. A class of 46 students was scheduled to graduate on July 28 and 56 students were scheduled to enter the school Sept. 14.

COUNCIL, SCHOOL BOARD CLASH OVER DRAIN PROJECT PAYMENT

A drain which crosses Faxon Field near the new Vocational-Technical School is the latest cause for friction between the city council and the school committee. Some $72,000 was spent on the drain project and charged to the School Construction Account when it should have been charged to the city account. The school committee wanted the money back. The council balked at paying back the monies.

Bernazzani Elementary School Science Festival A Success

Quincy High School National Honor Society Service Project Honors Luc Theberge

By COLLIN
MacDONALD

On Tuesday, May 21, Quincy High School's National Honor Society conducted a hands-on science festival at the Bernazzani Elementary School.

Each year the group makes it their goal to perform one big service project for the community every spring. This year, one of our members proposed we go to one of Quincy's elementary schools and show the kids a variety of projects to inspire their interests in science and engineering. We wanted to honor our recently deceased friend, Lucien Theberge, since Luc was going to go to school in pursuit of these fields.

When it came time to choose which school to do the teach-in day, it was only natural to choose Bernazzani Elementary, the school in which Luc and I both attended. On the day of the event, it was great to see my classmates all having their projects at the ready and taking it seriously.

Coming back to Bernazzani, I was filled with excitement. Everyone immediately got into place and set up their projects at the tables around the gym. It was nerve-wracking, seeing the elementary students stream into the gym, knowing that I wanted to do something that would make both Quincy High and Luc proud.

At the beginning of the event we talked to the students about Luc and how his thirst for knowledge began right where they were sitting. After that, the elementary students split into groups and rotated every six minutes through a series of stations led by our NHS members. The Quincy High School NHS students developed activities and projects designed to engage and inspire the elementary students. These demonstrations included microscopes, static electricity, and surface tension among liquids, to name a few. Seeing the smiles on the kids' faces and hearing the pure excitement in their voices is something that I know Luc would have loved to see, and I am confident that we made him proud.

I would like to thank the students and administration of Bernazzani for being so unbelievably cooperative and engaged. I would also like to thank my fellow classmates in the National Honor Society. It was apparent that both the students from Bernazzani, as well as Quincy High School, received a great deal of enjoyment from the experience.

I would lastly like to thank Mr. Ray Theberge for coming down and showing his support for the event. His presence reminded us all of the selfless spirit he shares with Luc and convinced me just how important this event truly was.

WOODWARD SCHOOL STUDENTS took part in an array of community service projects during the recently completed school year. Projects included service at the Greater Boston Food Bank, Father Bill's, Boston Children's Hospital, Pennies for Patients, Promises for Purple, Quincy Animal Shelter and Toys for Tots. Woodward School Students Accent Community Service

Community service at the Woodward School in Quincy is a true value of the mission and program the school wants integrated into students' lives.

The school believes practice of service to others is enriching, enlarging and sustaining to those who participate. The students have worked in service to the Greater Boston Food Bank, Father Bill's, Boston Children's Hospital, Pennies for Patients, Promises for Purple, Quincy Animal Shelter, and Toys for Tots, among others.

The school is very proud of its students especially in the 2018-2019 year in service. The Interact Club organized the annual Coats for Kids sponsored by Jordan's Furniture and Anton Cleaners. Every year Woodward places either in third or second place in the high school division. This year the school placed first and was awarded 100 IMAX tickets and $800 from Jordan's Furniture for sports programs.

Every year, students lead charity drives for D.O.V.E. and this year was truly a success. Emma Caulfield '20 of Quincy, collected over 52 baskets filled with beauty and spa products for the Mother's Day Basket Drive. These baskets were distributed to the clients of D.O.V.E.

Over 80 costumes were collected for the Annual Halloween Costume Drive for Interfaith Social Services. This drive was planned and organized by the members of the Interact Club of Woodward.

Students also organized and contributed to several food drives to assist area families QCAP and Interfaith Social Services service.

Student, Ashley Vazana '20 of W. Bridgewater, spearheaded a holiday toy collection drive for Bay State Social Services in Quincy. Ashley collected over 50 toys and games for area children.

Lastly, Woodward School received a gold banner from the Massachusetts Leukemia and Lymphoma Society for contributing to the Pennies for Patients collection which finds research and provides care for children and young adults. For the past three years, the Interact Club, a service club sponsored by the Rotary Club of Quincy, has organized this fundraiser. The Interact Club is advised by Dean of Student Life, Liza Iolli.

Cong. Ayanna Pressley Receives WORK, Inc. Champion Award

Two Quincy residents recently presented Cong. Ayanna Pressley with WORK, INC.'s AbilityOne Champion Award for Support of Employment of Individuals with disabilities.

WORK Inc., located in Dorchester, provides job opportunities for individuals with disabilities and is a partner of the AbilityOne program, providing employment opportunities through federal contracts for almost 45,000 people who are blind or have significant disabilities.

In Massachusetts WORK Inc., employs 120 individuals with disabilities on these federal contracts at locations such as JFK Presidential Library and Museum, TIO'Neil Building, Moakley Courthouse, Springfield Courthouse, U.S. Customs House in New Bedford, and many others throughout Massachusetts.

This program would not be possible without the support of members of Congress. Nearly 150 members of the current Congress are AbilityOne Champions and have joined the national effort to ensure employment opportunities continue to grow for people who are blind or have significant disabilities. An AbilityOne Champion goes the extra mile to help the participating nonprofits, like WORK Inc.

Andrea Mitsch Cook and Yolanda Pagan, of WORK Inc. and both Quincy residents, attended the SourceAmerica Grassroots conference in D.C. and had the honor of presenting an AbilityOne Champion plaque to Cong. Pressley for her continued support and fierce advocacy of those with disabilities.

Pagan, a worker at the JFK Presidential Library and Museum, told the congresswoman what her job means to her.

"After my husband passed away, I needed to work, but who would hire a person like me, a person with a disability," Pagan said. "I found WORK, Inc. and they trained me in custodial and got me a job at the Library. I love my job at the Library, it has made me feel like somebody."

I even framed my first paycheck," Pagan said during the meeting with Pressley.

Tara Nguyen Receives Academic Excellence Award At ECSU

Tara Nguyen of Quincy, a student at Eastern Connecticut State University in Willimantic, CT, was recently honored at the 2019 Inclusive Excellence Awards.

Nguyen, a member of the Class of '21, majors in sociology. She was presented with an Academic Excellence Award.

Potato Cakes With Creamed Pea Sauce

By MARIE

Through the years I have made all kinds of cakes, including fish cakes.

Today's recipe is a delicious recipe for potato cakes and does not take long other than the boiling potatoes. You can save time by boiling the potatoes ahead of time.

This dish is served with a creamed pea sauce, and both recipes are below.

Recipe and Directions:

6 large potatoes
¼ cup of milk
3 eggs, beaten
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 cups of flour

Peel and boil potatoes in salted water until tender. Drain and mash.

Beat in milk, eggs, salt, flour and baking powder. Form into patties.

Brown potato patties lightly in vegetable oil.

Serve with a delicious Cream Pea Sauce.

Creamed Pea Sauce
2 cups of milk
2 tablespoons of flour
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup frozen peas

Melt butter in sauce pan, stir in flour and form roux.

Slowly add milk, blending until smooth, cook until thickened and fold in peas. Set aside.

Suzie's Grain-Free Turkey Meatballs

By SUSIE

These meatballs are really, really good. I have a couple of secret ingredients for these. I learned them from two different chefs.

One is the addition of Dijon mustard, which seems odd for Italian style meatballs, but really add an important enhanced flavor. They will not taste like mustard.

The second is baking soda. Yes, just 1/4 teaspoon per pound of ground meat makes the meatballs lighter, and more tender.

Another is coconut flour instead of breadcrumbs. This along with the egg is the binder for the meatballs. Coconut flour is very versatile, is tasteless in this recipe (Your meatballs won't taste like mustard or coconut.) I hope you like them!

RECIPE

1 pound ground turkey
1 large egg

1 shallot, minced
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 tablespoons tomato paste
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard (secret ingredient)
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 tablespoon coconut flour
1 teaspoon sea salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon baking soda (secret ingredient)
2 tablespoons grated Romano cheese
1/2 teaspoon dried basil
1/2 teaspoon dried oregano

Combine all ingredients well.

Form into balls (I like to use an ice cream scoop) and bake at 375 degrees on a parchment paper lined cookie sheet for about 20 minutes or so, depending on size.

Serve with your favorite tomato sauce.

Tufts Health Plan Employees Volunteer At Germantown Neighborhood Center

More than 1,000 Tufts Health Plan employees recently traveled across New England – including a stop in Quincy – to serve local nonprofits as part of its 11th Annual Volunteer Day.

Locally volunteers painted the entry way and other spaces and also organized the kitchen and pantry spaces at the Germantown Neighborhood Center. The center provides life changing education, services and support to the Quincy community.

Tufts Health Plan's mission is to improve the health and wellness of the diverse communities it serves. During Volunteer Day, employees showcased this commitment by giving back to the cities and towns where they live and work.

The health plan is celebrating its 40th anniversary this year. Volunteers participated in a range of projects, including preparing meals for people with chronic illnesses, doing yard work, engaging older people in their choice of activities, sorting donated food, assembling books for people who are blind or visually impaired, setting up sites for summer camps, and more.

"Volunteering isn't just something we do; it's who we are," said Tom Crosswell, Tufts Health Plan president and CEO. "I'm incredibly proud of our dedicated employees who are so committed to our members and our local communities each and every day."

New Victory Room At Victory Point Waterfront Private Function Space

By KERRY BYRNE

One of Greater Boston's most prominent restaurant families continues to reshape the hospitality scene in Quincy's historic waterfront Marina Bay neighborhood.

The Frattaroli Family of North End restaurant fame has announced the opening of the Victory Room at Victory Point (332 Victory Road, Quincy; 617-481-1070). It's an intimate but sleek and sophisticated new private function space on the second floor above their year-old restaurant on the Marina Bay boardwalk.

"Marina Bay is changing rapidly with new residential and commercial development and we're excited to offer our neighbors more drinking-and-dining options in this beautiful harborside location," said Victory Point owner Donato Frattaroli.

City councilor at large Nina Liang hosts a campaign kickoff party in the new space on Thursday, June 27. Ward 6 councilor Bill Harris recently hosted an event there, too.

The Victory Room offers sweeping views of Boston Harbor and the fleet of luxury yachts below, plus the opportunity for guests to select from a special menu of fresh local seafood and authentic Italian flavors including hand-made pastas, fresh-baked breads, pizzas, salads and other lighter options, plus classic Italian desserts and pastries.

Frattaroli is a celebrated North End restaurateur, the founder of The Taste of the North End, one of the region's most successful food-centric fundraisers, and past president of the Massachusetts Restaurant Association.

Frattaroli and his son Donato Jr. purchased the former Captain Fishbones in Marina Bay in 2017. They rebranded the space Victory Point in 2018 – a tribute to the neighborhood's history as the home of a military airfield and the Victory Destroyer Plant shipyard.

They introduced this spring a new menu that pairs classic North End-style Italian and Italian-American fare with local seafood befitting the restaurant's scenic waterfront location.

Victory Point features a 90-seat dining room and bar, with almost every seat affording a view of the water; an outdoor boardwalk bar and lounge that seats an additional 80 guests; private dining space on the boardwalk level; plus their new upper level private Victory Room with grand views of Boston Harbor and the Harbor Islands.

The Victory Room features 1,600 square feet of space, a dedicated bar, contemporary but nautically inspired ocean-wave lighting, and seats for up to 75 people.

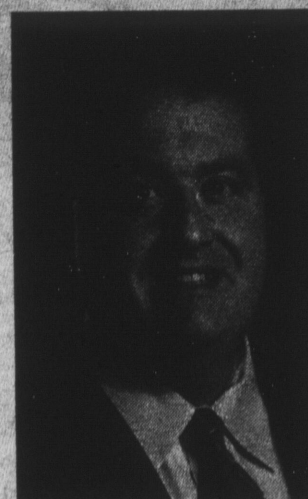

"The Victory Room is the perfect space for anyone who wants to enjoy a private waterside event whether there's fireworks on the harbor this summer, an intimate wedding or just a nice evening out with friends for that special occasion," said Frattaroli.

For more information, contact Frattaroli at info@victorypoint.com.

Comprehensive Benefit Administrators Founder Speaks At Rotary Meeting

Speaking before an audience of about 50 people at the Rotary Club of Quincy, Michael McKenna, founder and CEO of Comprehensive Benefit Administrators, a company combining traditional brokerage services with specialty services including advocacy, claims administration, benefits expertise, and compliance, outlined several measures businesses might consider to mitigate the spiraling costs of healthcare.

McKenna, who has authored numerous articles and opinion pieces on the topic, touched on a number of cost-trimming avenues, including introduction of comparative prescription drug plans to allow employees and dependents access to prescription drugs through the employer plan, prescription manufacturer, private or government sponsored assistance programs.

He also proposed that employers embrace a mandated second opinion program separate from insurance, as studies have shown an absolute return on investment for consumers seeking independent second opinions for serious ailments.

Telemedicine is another tactic that could be utilized to lower costs, said McKenna, noting that according to the American Medical Association, an estimated 70% of emergency room, urgent care and primary care visits are unnecessary and can be handled via telemedicine.

Sleeping With TV On May Be Bad For Your Health

A Message From Ruth Jones, City Of Quincy Health Commissioner

By RUTH JONES
MSPH, BSN, RN,
BC, CP-FS

How often have you fallen asleep with the lights, or television on, or even stayed up late to use your computer immediately before going to bed?

A crucial factor in regulating sleep and your biological clocks appears to be exposure to light or darkness, so nodding off with lights on may not be beneficial for a good night's sleep. Exposure to light stimulates a nerve pathway from the eye to parts of the brain that control hormones, body temperature and various other functions that play a part in making us feel drowsy or wide-awake.

Too much light, right before bedtime may inhibit you from getting a good night's sleep. In fact, one study found that exposure to unnatural light cycles may have valid consequences for our well-being including increased risk for depression. Regulating exposure to light is a useful way to keep circadian rhythms in check

Helpful tips include:

- During the day, find time for sunlight, or purchase a light-box to supplement your exposure to light.

- At night, keep your sleep environment dark. Light-blocking curtains, drapes or an eye mask can also assist, and if you find yourself waking up in the middle of the night, avoid as much light as possible by using a low illumination night light.

- Prior to bedtime, limit television viewing and computer use, especially in the bedroom, as they impede quality sleep.

Setting good sleep habits is specifically important for infants and children, as it directly influences mental and physical development. Circadian rhythms develop at about six weeks, and by three to six months, most infants have a regular sleep-wake cycle.

Recently, a new study conducted is advising women to beware. Scientists are saying that sleeping with a light on or the TV going in your bedroom could actually make you put on weight. That's the finding of new research published in JAMA Internal Medicine. Though the study doesn't prove that sleeping with a light on causes weight gain, it suggests the two may be linked, the researchers said.

Dr. Yong-Moon Mark Park, a postdoctoral fellow at the U.S. National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences in Research Triangle Park, N.C., pointed out that turning off the light while sleeping may be a valuable tool for reducing a possibility of weight gain and becoming overweight or obese. Park said that exposure to artificial light at night may suppress the sleep hormone melatonin and disrupt the natural sleep-wake cycle.

It also might possibly disturb day-to-day variations of stress hormones and affect other metabolic processes in ways conducive to weight gain. He says that keeping a light on might also result in poorer sleep and shorter amounts of sleep could prompt you to exercise less and eat more.

For this study, researchers depended on self-reported data from approximately 44,000 women, aged 35 to 74. They found that women who slept with a light on were 17% more likely to gain 11 pounds or more over five years. They also ascertained that the level of artificial light appeared to matter.

For instance, utilizing a small nightlight was not associated with weight gain, whereas women who slept with a light or television on were. The findings didn't vary when researchers accounted for women's diet and physical activity, suggestive that light during sleep may be important in weight gain and obesity.

In a review of the findings, Dr. David Katz, director of the Yale-Griffin Prevention Research Center in New Haven, Connecticut, said the link between exposure to artificial light at night and obesity may not indicate that one causes the other. He pointed out that as with any study of association, two findings are true, but not necessarily directly related. Katz suggested that the key point is that sleep deficiency and impairment is a recognized obesity risk factor, for reasons ranging from mood and reduced restraint, to changes in hormonal balance.

More studies are necessary to more clearly establish the mechanisms behind what is happening. Nonetheless, this study is further evidence that obesity is a complex systems issue. It is the result of the biological, behavioral, social, or other systems being disrupted. The study also is further evidence of how the quality of your sleep may affect your mental and physical health in numerous ways.

Ruth Jones is the health commissioner for the City of Quincy.

Linda Kelly Receives Statewide Recognition For Outstanding Board Service

City of Quincy resident and Manet Community Health Center board member Linda Kelly was named the Massachusetts League of Community Health Centers' 2019 Outstanding Board Member at its annual awards gala June 7.

Awardees are selected from among hundreds of eligible community health center board members, and must demonstrate dedication both to the delivery of primary health care services and to the communities in which those services are provided.

"Linda's devotion to Manet Community Health Center and the greater Quincy community is unrivaled," said James W. Hunt, Jr., president and CEO of the Massachusetts League of Community Health Centers (Mass League). "She has used her personal experiences, knowledge, and expertise to ensure that Manet Community Health Center and the city's civic and social service institutions effectively support the health and well-being of all Quincy residents."

The Mass League's annual awards gala attracts more than 600 attendees from across the health care industry, philanthropic community, and state and federal government. The event highlights the work and mission of community health centers and honors 7 exemplary employees who are nominated by their colleagues, selected by the Mass League's Program Committee, and approved by its Executive Board.

"Without a doubt, this is our favorite event of the year," said Sue Joss, chairperson of the Mass League and CEO of the Brockton Neighborhood Health Center. "It provides an opportunity to not only recognize the outstanding contributions of health center employees such as Linda, but to take stock of what health centers have done to improve the health of communities over their 54-year history."

The nation's first community health center opened its doors in Boston, Massachusetts in 1965, launching a nationwide community-based health movement. Today, 314 community health center sites provide medical, behavioral health, dental, vision, pharmacy and other community-based services to more than one million state residents. Established in 1972, the Mass League provides a wide range of assistance to community health centers and serves as an information source on community-based health care to policymakers, opinion leaders, and the media.

Major sponsors at the gala were Eversource, Partners HealthCare, AllWays Health Partners, and South Cove Community Health Center. The event was held June 7 at the Copley Westin Hotel in Boston.

Children's Library Events, Activities

By JULIE RINES
Children's Coordinator
Thomas Crane Public Library

The following events and activities for children are scheduled at the Thomas Crane Public Library during the week of June 28 to July 2.

Summer Program Kickoff with Knucklebones

Join us on the Main Library Lawn (weather permitting) on Friday, June 28th from 10:00 – 11:30 am to sign up for Summer Reading and kick off our summer of fun with Knucklebones. Register on Beanstack for our summer reading program and get a sticker to show everyone you are a summer reader.

This summer we will be celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Apollo 11 Moon Landing and all things space with our Summer Library Adventure – Universe of Stories. Children ages 0-12 are invited to participate in our summer reading program and join us for 2 months of FREE summer activities.

The fun begins with Field Day Fun with Knucklebones. Try your hand at walking on stilts, build a structure out of giant foam builders, play gaga ball and much more. We'll be sure to have games for all ages.

In case of inclement weather the program will move indoors, some activities will have to change to accommodate indoor spaces.

Summer Library Quests

This summer, turn a walk around the library into a scavenger hunt. In the Children's room at the Main Library or at the North Quincy Branch, children can follow directions to hunt for letter clues to spell out a mystery phrase. At Wollaston we'll have hidden pictures to search for, find the picture and find a letter in our mystery word/phrase.

Younger children can search just in the Children's Room; older kids age 10 and up can try their luck with a puzzle that allows them to explore all the floors of the library. This is aimed at children who are able to read, but can be enjoyed by younger ones with the help of a parent.

Children's Movie Matinee @North Quincy

On Monday afternoons at 2 p.m. this summer at the North Quincy Branch Library join us for a series of children's movie matinees. The fun begins on July 1st with Ralph Breaks the Internet (rated PG runtime 112 min.)

Story Craft in the Main Library Children's Room

Beginning on July 1st stop by the Main Library Children's Room on Monday afternoons at 2:30 to hear a space story and do a space themed craft. This program is for children ages 2-6 accompanied by an adult.

Storytelling at the Wollaston Beach Playground (the Tot Lot)

Beginning July 2nd join us at the Wollaston Beach Playground Park on the corner of Sachem Street next to the Clam Box across from Wollaston Beach each Tuesday in July at 10:30 a.m. for stories, songs and more.

Social Security Matters Confused About Working, Medicare And Spousal Benefits

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I will reach my full retirement age (FRA) in September of 2020 at age 66. My wife will be 64 at that time and will start drawing her SS at 1/2 of my benefit because it will be more than hers, even if she reached her FRA. My question is, I know I will need to sign up for Medicare Part A this year at age 65 but do I need Part B at this time? Both myself and my wife work for the same company and have insurance through them. I will have insurance for one more year through the company until I retire at 66. Another question is when I retire at 66 and my wife retires at age 64 at 1/2 my benefit, will she be able to sign up for Medicare because she is drawing SS benefits? Or will she have to wait until 3 months before she turns 65? Signed: Planning Our Retirement

Dear Planning: Signing up for Medicare when you turn 65 is optional if you have creditable employer coverage. If you enroll in Part A, and you have a Health Savings Account (HSA) you and your employer must both stop contributing to it the month before you turn 65. Whether you should take Medicare Part B (coverage for doctors and other outpatient services) at age 65 depends upon whether your healthcare coverage through your employer is considered a "creditable" alternative to Medicare Part B coverage. Generally, if it's a group plan with more than 20 participants it will be considered creditable, but you should check with your HR department to make sure. Assuming your employer coverage is "creditable," you can defer enrolling in Part B until your employer coverage ends. At that time, you'll enter a "special enrollment period" during which you can enroll in Medicare Part B (and Part D drug plan) without a late enrollment penalty. You can enroll in Part B (and Part D) a little before your employer coverage ends so as to avoid any lapse in health care coverage.

If your wife claims her Social Security benefit at age 64 when you claim your SS at age 66, her own benefit will be reduced, and her spousal benefit will also be reduced from 50% of yours because she is claiming the spousal benefit earlier than her full retirement age. Any time any Social Security benefit is claimed earlier than one's full retirement age it is reduced. Taken 2 years before her FRA, your wife's spousal benefit will be about 42% of yours, not 50%.

Your wife cannot enroll in Medicare simply because she is collecting Social Security; she's not eligible for Medicare until she is 65 (she can enroll 3 months earlier for coverage to start the month she turns 65). If your wife retires from work before she is eligible for Medicare, she may use COBRA coverage until she reaches age 65 and her Medicare coverage begins. If your wife claims her Social Security to start when she retires at 64, she will be automatically enrolled in Medicare Parts A and B just prior to her turning 65 years of age, but if she continues to work and still has creditable employee (not COBRA) healthcare coverage from her employer at that time and wishes to delay enrolling in Part B (to avoid the premium), she can do so until her employer coverage ends. Then when her employer coverage ends, she should enroll in Medicare Part B (and Part D plan) during her special enrollment period so as to avoid any future late enrollment penalties.

Finally, you should both be enrolled in Medicare Part A (hospitalization coverage) because it is required to collect Social Security benefits after age 65. Medicare Part A coverage is free for anyone who is eligible to receive Social Security benefits.

Local Beer Enthusiasts Plan Quincy Brewery Break Rock Brewing Partners With Crowd-Funding Site MainVest

By KERRY BYRNE

Quincy is the largest city in New England without a local craft brewery – but that's about to change and Boston beer lovers can help make it a reality.

Break Rock Brewing LLC has announced a partnership with MainVest, the crowd-source funding site devoted to reshaping America's Main Streets with innovative, locally owned businesses, many of them celebrated new brands in the food & drinks space.

The fundraising campaign began on June 13 and ends on Aug. 14.

"We are committed to bringing a world-class craft brewery to Quincy and we're excited to offer this opportunity to our neighbors to help make it a reality," said Break Rock Brewing founder, brewer and president Jay Southwood. "Working with MainVest affords the hard-working, beer-loving people of Quincy and neighboring communities a chance to invest the city's only craft brewery while helping enhance this diverse, dynamic community."

MainVest offers local residents, neighbors, craft beer fans and investors an easy opportunity to help open Break Rock Brewing Co.

Details of the opportunity are found on the MainVest website.

Southwood is a South Shore native, Dorchester resident and Boston beer industry veteran who currently works at Mayflower Brewing Co. in Plymouth. Break Rock's brewhouse will be headed by Villija Bizinkauskas, also a South Shore native who currently brews beer for Drop In Brewing Co. in Middlebury, Vermont.

Southwood and his team are working to a secure a location in Quincy. The Break Rock brand and its motto – "Work Hard. Drink Well" – pays homage to the city's working-class heritage and industrial history, specifically the city's internationally celebrated former granite quarrying industry. Bunker Hill Monument, among other iconic buildings and monuments around America, are built of Quincy granite.

Break Rock will brew and distribute beer in and around Quincy, and also serve beer in its own neighborhood taproom.

"Drinking beer should be casual and fun, something to enjoy after a hard day of work," said Southwood. "We expect our brewery to be a little bit different than most contemporary craft beer taprooms."

"Guests will find a warm, welcoming neighborhood tavern that happens to brew world-class American craft beer. Break Rock Brewing will be a place for everyone from local sports fans to experienced craft beer aficionados, offering great beer in a casual, laid-back environment."

Southwood and the Break Rock team are working to finalize a location in Quincy and anticipate opening and serving the community by 2020.

For more information about investing in Break Rock, visit the MainVest website. You can also follow Break Rock on its website or on Facebook, Instagram or Twitter.

"Break Rock will combine the best of the modern taproom with everything you love about your favorite neighborhood pub – a fun and inviting atmosphere, a sense of community, and great beer," said Southwood.

Quincy was briefly the home of Quincy Ships Brewing Co., featuring beer from legendary New England brewer Tod Mott. But that operation closed its doors in 2002.

City Celebrates Completion Of Workforce Housing Project

The Watson In Quincy Point

WinnCompanies, an award-winning multifamily development and management company, and its local nonprofit partner, NeighborWorks Housing Solutions, celebrated a ribbon-cutting ceremony Monday at The Watson, a $44 million, 140-unit apartment community located on East Howard Street in Quincy Point.

Cong. Stephen Lynch, Gov. Charlie Baker, state Sen. John Keenan, Mayor Thomas Koch, HUD Regional Administrator David E. Tille, and MassHousing Executive Director Chrystal Kornegay were among the dignitaries who attended today's ribbon-cutting ceremony at the newly constructed property.

The Watson features 86 apartments available to rent at 110% of Area Median Income (AMI), a new "middle-income" rental category aimed at individuals and families whose incomes are too high for traditional housing subsidies but too low to afford rising rental housing costs. Twenty percent of the property (28 apartments) are rented at 50% AMI and 20 percent (26 apartments) are market rate units. All but one of the workforce units are rented.

"We are proud this community is already 96 percent leased. It's clearly having a positive impact for working people who have struggled to find apartments that they can afford in greater Boston," said WinnCompanies CEO Gilbert Winn. "This is a national model for a true mixed-income community as it is able to provide housing for low, middle and higher income renters under one roof in a major metropolitan market with the vast majority of the units restricted for the so-called 'forgotten middle.'"

Construction was financed by Citigroup, city and state soft loans, and equity from WinnDevelopment. The project's various income restrictions were made possible through permanent financing and a workforce housing loan from MassHousing, city and state soft loans, and equity driven by the Housing Development Incentive Program (HDIP), a Massachusetts tax credit program designed to create housing in cities like Quincy. Dorfman Capital served as the capital provider for the HDIP tax credits.

"We're very proud of this project. We're proud of a number of the efforts that have gone forward under our workforce housing initiative," said Gov. Charlie Baker. "We continue to look forward to working with great communities like Quincy, our colleagues at the federal government, our colleagues in the private sector to continue to put opportunities like this together for people here in the Commonwealth."

The project represents a major urban place-making initiative. It was developed on the site of a long-vacant former office building adjacent to the former Fore River Shipyard, a largely dormant, sprawling shipbuilding complex facility that stands as one of Quincy's best opportunities for mixed-use, mixed-income development. Community leaders believe The Watson will serve as a new anchor that generates more private investment opportunities in an underdeveloped area of

At the event, Mayor Koch presented Gov. Baker with the Mayor's 2019 Community Service award in recognition of Gov. Baker's unwavering support of community development programs, which are used for investment in workforce housing, economic development, public infrastructure, and programs serving poor and homeless individuals and families.

"Workforce Housing is essential to the balance of our residents' needs," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "I applaud a project like The Watson for the value it brings to our City."

The City of Quincy contributed $2 million to the project, consisting of $1.25 million from its Affordable Housing Trust Fund, $500,000 in federal HOME funds and $250,000 in Community Preservation Act funds. That support, blended with tax-exempt financing, allowed WinnCompanies and NeighborWorks to generate federal Low-Income Housing Tax Credit equity, which in turn, created meaningful affordability while minimizing the use of scarce state affordable housing resources.

"We need to connect families to jobs and to the economy and transportation to really fulfill their lives, not just warehousing people," said U.S. Rep. Stephen Lynch.

The Watson would not have been possible without the strong partnership between WinnCompanies and NeighborWorks Housing Solutions. As part owner and co-developer, the nonprofit helped source the opportunity, provided clerk of the works services, and raised critical local and federal funding to support the project.

"NeighborWorks has been focused on community redevelopment in Quincy Point for decades and we are so thrilled to see this amazing project completed," said NeighborWorks CEO Rob

Corley. "The Watson benefits households of all incomes and is a true public-private partnership resulting in a tremendous reinvestment in this proud neighborhood."

The property offers eight studio, 85 one-bedroom and 47 two-bedroom units, and includes a gym, community room, networking lounge, a dog park and a large second floor patio courtyard.

in the Wollaston Hill neighborhood and grew over the following years to include the additional neighborhoods. The event is intended to showcase the talent of local musicians.

"Our goal is to get eyes on the volunteer performers," Cain said. "That's our overarching goal."

The organizers have already set a date for the fifth annual PorchFest Quincy, which will be held June 20, 2020. Cain said organizers would meet starting this week to review possible changes ahead of next

June's PorchFest.

The outdoor music fest could be expanded to additional neighborhoods in the future, Cain said, but organizers want to ensure the event doesn't become too spread out. This year, for instance, the areas where the performances took place were brought in closer together so the event would be more contiguous with less walking.

Koch: Residents Will See 5% Reduction In Flood Insurance Bills

"This is a great step forward for our community that was years in the making," Koch said. "This cost-savings for residents in the flood zone is a direct result of prioritizing flood-relief projects and working directly with our residents on navigating the complicated process of flood insurance and all of its related issues."

"I am grateful for the incredibly hard work of our Department of Public Works; our Engineering Division; and our private partners at Woodard & Curran for making this a reality," the mayor added.

Residents in flood zones will see a decrease in their flood insurance premiums thanks to diligent work by city officials. Through increasing flood protection services and developing a comprehensive permitting process across all city departments, the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) lowered the City's Community Rating System (CRS) to Rate Class 7. Only five other communities across Massachusetts have obtained the CRS Rate Class 7, the best Rate Class achieved across the state.

This rating system is on a scale of one through 10; a Rate Class 10 indicates the most at-risk flood zones with the highest insurance policy rates. Each step down from Rate Class 10 equates a 5 percent premium reduction. Quincy is now at a Level 7. In total, this means residents within Quincy's flood zone are receiving a total 15 percent reduction in insurance premiums with this new CRS assignment.

O'Donnell Reminds Homeowners Of Need To File Mortgage Discharges

Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell reminds Norfolk County homeowners about the importance of filing a mortgage discharge after their mortgage has been paid off.

"When a mortgage has been paid off, a mortgage discharge document needs to be recorded with the Registry of Deeds to clear a homeowner's property title relative to that loan," O'Donnell said. "A discharge is a document (typically one-two pages) issued by the lender, usually with a title such as 'Discharge of Mortgage' or 'Satisfaction of Mortgage.'

"In some cases," noted O'Donnell, "discharges are filed directly by banks or settlement closing attorneys with the Registry as part of a property sale or as a result of a refinancing transaction. In other instances, the mortgage discharge is sent to the property owner who then becomes responsible for making sure the document is recorded. Whether or not a discharge is recorded by the lending institution or the individual property owner, it is important that the property owner makes sure all necessary documents have been recorded at the Registry of Deeds."

O'Donnell also said: "One way for a homeowner to check their title is by accessing the Registry's online records at www.norfolkdeeds.org and verifying if all mortgages associated with the property have been discharged. Please remember not having a mortgage discharged will result in a title issue and thereby impact the process of selling one's home."

O'Donnell further noted that there have been cases where no discharge has been recorded against a long paid off mortgage. "Unfortunately, some of the lending institutions that provided funds for these mortgages are no longer in existence. In other cases, financial entities have merged with another lending institution."

If a property owner needs to retrieve an original discharge of mortgage and is unclear which lending institution is now responsible for providing the document, an option is to contact the Massachusetts Division of Banks at 1-800-495-2265 x-1 and then x-61501. Another option is to access the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation website www.fdic.gov. Then find the BankFind tab approximately half way down the home page, put in the lending institution in question, then click on the lending institution link and you will be able to determine who has responsibility for the mortgage.

When recording a discharge, the original document is required. The Registry of Deeds does not accept photo copies or faxed copies of documents. The filing fee, set by state statute, is $76.00.

"After paying off all the mortgages on their property, homeowners want to have peace of mind that they have clear title to their property, especially if they are contemplating selling,"

O'Donnell said. "Being on top of what is required will go a long way in giving the homeowner assurances that they have clear title to their property. I strongly urge homeowners to make sure their mortgage discharge has been filed with the Registry of Deeds once their mortgage has been paid off."

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds is located at 649 High St. in Dedham. The Registry is a resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information. All land record research information can be found on the Registry's website www.norfolkdeeds.org.

Residents in need of assistance can call the Registry of Deeds Customer Service Center at (781) 461-6101, or email registerodonnell@norfolkdeeds.org.

QCAP Homebuyer Workshop July 18, July 20

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) will host a set of comprehensive workshops designed for first time home buyers.

The First Time Home Buyer Workshop will be held in two sessions: Thursday, July 18th from 6 to 9 p.m. and Saturday, July 20th from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Envision Bank, 10 Cabot Place, Stoughton.

This monthly workshop focuses on all aspects of the home buying process. Real estate professionals will present information on topics from mortgages to home insurance. Attendees must attend both sessions in order to receive a certificate of attendance. Participants may use their certificate to obtain a low rate loan through MassHousing or MassHousing Partnerships. Free individual counseling is also available.

Registration will be open until Tuesday, July 16th. However, space is limited. The cost is $30 per person and the fee is non-refundable. Register online at: <https://qcap.ejoinme.org/FTHBJuly2019>

For more information, contact Keely Elta at (617) 657-5315 or kelta@qcap.org, or visit www.qcap.org.

Ask Barbara Graceffa: 'Secretary Of The Interior'

'Bold And Beautiful' Bathroom Fixtures

I want to refresh my outdated bathroom. I plan to keep the existing off-white fixtures but I'm ready for "bold and beautiful" and welcome your suggestions.
Carly

Begin with a new color. If you put your makeup on in the bathroom, saturated colors of blue or green will bounce off your skin and not present the best you. Caucasian women should avoid yellow too because it can make your skin look sallow. For that perfect glow, consider neutrals, pale shades and pinks. If you apply makeup in the bedroom, the sky is the limit for bath color choices. If you want a dark color, be sure to add extra lighting to the room.

The bathroom is also a great room to use bold, large-scale or geometric wallpaper. If you are sheepish about this, go bold with the shower curtain.

Medicine cabinets are out of style so splurge on a great mirror to beautify the space. Choose one at least 2/3 the width of the sink or vanity above which it hangs but never wider than them.

Don't skimp on lighting and, depending on the size of the room, have at least two sources of light — one overhead and the other above or on both sides of the mirror.

Also invest in quality flooring and wall tiles; you can save on wall tiles with a plain look but indulge in an accent tile because you will not need much of it and I promise you will not regret the extra dollars.

When it comes to art in the bathroom, add a nicely framed nude painting or photocopies of beautiful color photos from one of your travel destinations. My friend Sheila has photos of her four children in a bubble bath hanging on her bath wall ... and her kids are now out of college!

Finally, head to the home store for nice fluffy towels and the "jewelry" of the room in stylish toothbrush holder, cup, and soap dish or dispenser.

4th of July Grill Safety From Propane Gas Association

Before firing up the propane grill for 4th of July, the Propane Gas Association of New England (PGANE) recommends homeowners take the following steps to get the most from their outdoor appliances safely:

1. Follow the Manufacturer's Instructions. Whether it's assembly, use, maintenance, cleaning, or storage, make your grill manufacturer's instructions your go-to resource for safe grilling.

2. Position the Grill in a Safe Location. Keep your grill outdoors and at least five feet from the house on a level surface that is clear of outdoor furniture, overhead trees, or other potential fire hazards.

3. Check for Leaks. Use a soapy water solution to check connections for leaks. Expanding bubbles indicate a leak. Follow this procedure at the start of each season and every time you replace a cylinder.

4. Follow Proper Lighting Procedures. Follow the manufacturer's lighting instructions. With all grill models, keep the lid open and don't lean over the grill when lighting it.

5. Follow Proper Relighting Procedures. If your flame goes out, turn off the gas and refer to your owner's manual. At a minimum, with all grill models, keep the lid open and wait at least 15 minutes before relighting.

6. Keep Propane Outdoors. Remember that propane tanks should NEVER be stored indoors or in an enclosed area such as a basement, garage or shed.

7. Be Present. Stay close and never leave your grill unattended.

Safety for Kids — The grilling area should also be designated as a "No Play Zone," keeping kids and pets away from the equipment.

To help kids learn about gas grill safety, the Propane Education & Research Council has launched the fun interactive website www.propanekids.com.

How To Protect Trees From Heavy Rains

Spring in Massachusetts often means light rains that saturate the ground. While trees in the region are accustomed to this amount of rain, too much water threatens trees' ability to stand tall, strong and steady.

Just like most living things, your plants, shrubs and trees can only handle so much water. When torrential downpours create puddles of standing water near the bases of tree trunks, problems may occur above and below ground.

"After approximately seven days, standing water can seriously prevent oxygen from reaching tree roots underground, which may contribute to root rot," explains Josh Fritz, a certified arborist and district manager at Hartney Greymont, a Davey company. "And if the foliage retains water over time, the excess moisture can breed foliar diseases." Anthracnose is a huge problem right now. It affects oaks, dogwoods, maples, plane trees. Rust problems are also concern as this disease will contribute to early leaf drop.

Regardless of a tree's health, flood-prone areas are particularly threatening to root systems. Similar to the way humans suffocate due to lack of oxygen, after about seven days, root cells will die if they become saturated with water for an extended period of time. Excessive water deposits also wash away soil from the root zone, which weakens the tree's stability.

Flooding can also cause floating debris to damage trees and their bark and postpone tree care and maintenance. For example, proper tree trimming and fertilization applications are not possible with heavy amounts of rain collecting near trees.

Fritz suggests monitoring low-lying areas at the bases of tree trunks to prevent rain from collecting in puddles. "Aerate low areas and incorporate compost and soil before the rain falls. This will ensure your landscape is equipped with proper drainage capabilities," he says. Pruning the canopy will help increase air movement and deter disease pathogens from festering there, and it will improve trees' ability to withstand excessive rain, Fritz says. Submerged foliage may not recover if not addressed in a timely manner.

Trees may express several different warning signs as a result of flood damage, including structural damage, premature fall color, wilted leaves, discolored foliage, die-back, pest infestations, exposed roots and/or an unstable trunk. Although flooding can take a toll on trees, removal isn't always the best or necessary option.

To help ensure your trees stay strong and healthy after a storm, you can manage flood damage before it gets out of hand. Address concerns ahead of time by:

- Pruning dead or broken branches

- Re-setting or staking trees that are unstable or leaning

- Managing pests as needed

- Adding mulch to protect new sensitive roots and improve aeration

- Managing mineral nutrition with micro-nutrients and slow-release nitrogen sources

- Leaching soil where salt water has intruded to remove sodium

- Removing sediment deposits to return soil level to original grade

Always select trees for your hardiness zone to set yourself up for success. Plant new trees and shrubs in fall or spring — not summer and winter — so their root systems have time to take hold. Here are the best trees for Quincy's climate:

- Bald cypress (zones 4-10): A sleek, pyramid-shaped conifer that loses needles in the winter, thrives in swamps and can tolerate flooding.

- Picea glauca (zones 2-6): This extremely hardy evergreen conifer performs great in cold winter climates with cool summers.

- Thornless honeylocust (zones 3-9): A fast-growing shade tree that's easy to care for and moderately flood and drought tolerant.

- Hackberry (zones 3-9):

A tough tree that thrives almost anywhere and can tolerate some flooding and drought. Tupelos and Maackias are great choices as well.

Because trees take many years to reach maturity and add significant value to your property, monitoring is critical before, during and after severe weather occurs. If you're experiencing a wetter than usual summer, look out for your trees. After all, a tree's impressive stature and natural beauty are among many reasons why trees deserve your care and attention.

Home Ownership And The American Dream

By JULIANN GALLIGAN

All around our beautiful city, patriotic decor adorn the fronts of homes, the American flags are gracing the hills of Mount Wollaston Cemetery, the Flags for Vets Island near the Fort Square Presbyterian Church and many more points of interest throughout the city.

The American Flag is a symbol that most everyone can agree on that represents freedom, democracy and The American Dream. The American Dream, which is something I believe every American ultimately strives for.

But what is the American Dream exactly? And what does it mean to you?

The American Dream can mean a lot of different things depending on who you ask. Some say freedom, some say equal rights and opportunities, some say the opportunity to own property. To the majority of Americans, owning a home is an important part of the American Dream.

Becoming a property owner is an essential part of the American Dream that conveys a number of economic benefits such as the ability to accumulate wealth and access credit by building home equity, reduce housing costs through the mortgage interest deduction and gain long-term savings over the cost of renting. The belief among the vast majority of Americans whether they rent or own, is that purchasing a home still remains a major step towards accomplishing the American Dream.

I have mentioned in a previous article the difference between real estate agents and realtors. All realtors are licensed real estate agents but not all licensed real estate agents are realtors. To be a realtor, you must belong to the National Association of Realtors and subscribe to a strict Code of Ethics which includes 17 Articles. The National Association Of Realtors is America's largest Trade Association, representing over 1.2 million members, and is considered The Voice For Real Estate. RPAC or the Realtor Political Action Committee raises funds to help candidates in favor of homeownership and property rights to get elected. The Realtor Party is a powerful alliance of realtors and realtor associations that work to protect and promote homeownership and property investment. The Realtor Party speaks with one voice to advance candidates and public policies that build strong communities and promote a vibrant business environment. Who would ever think of a realtor as being such an influential political force?? Realtors do a lot more than just try to get you to buy or sell a house in hopes of making a generous commission.

Realtors want to ensure that you and your family are making the correct decisions and will always work in your best interest. We're here to see you through from that first phone call to the closing and beyond. Realtors advocate on Beacon Hill for the rights of Homeowners and business owners. We stood up, raised our right hand and took an oath to do so and our ultimate goal is to witness you achieve the American Dream and with Memorial Day and Flag Day behind us and Independence day approaching, this is a time to remember and reflect onto those who fought for our freedom, the land of the free because of the brave and because of those who sacrificed so much for us, what better way to pay it forward than to achieve the American Dream? It should be a goal for each and every one of us.

Tennis Club Honors Memory Of Dr. Philip Maloney

but his signature accomplishment at the club was leading the effort to rebuild the QTC clubhouse after it was destroyed by fire 41 years ago.

You could say it was the clubhouse that Philip built.

Now, it is officially the Dr. Philip Maloney QTC Clubhouse.

Earlier this month, the club dedicated the clubhouse in memory of Dr. Maloney on a beautiful sunny and windless June afternoon ideal for tennis. The esteemed and well-respected lifelong member of the club died Nov. 16, 2017 at the age of 86.

"His whole life he never asked for any recognition," said Dr. Maloney's wife, Frances Maloney, moments after she unveiled a plaque affixed on the clubhouse exterior wall near the main entrance to the building in her husband's honor.

"He did his job and as long as he could it well that was okay but the family appreciates (this honor) because we know what he put into the Quincy Tennis Club and tennis in general. We are all very happy; he always supported the Quincy Tennis Club."

The plaque, adorned with the Quincy Tennis Club logo, is inscribed:

"The Philip L. Maloney Clubhouse, dedicated with gratitude for Dr. Maloney's numerous contributions to QTC including his leadership in the rebuilding of the clubhouse following the 1978 fire."

Family and club members agreed the clubhouse dedication is a fitting tribute and testament to Dr. Maloney's love of the game, the club, and the community.

"Dr. Maloney dedicated himself to his family, his friends, his work and his tennis," said Rich Griffin, a past secretary of the QTC who coordinated and emceed the dedication event. "His leadership in building the Quincy Tennis Clubhouse after it was demolished by fire in 1978 was documented on our website and right here on our bulletin board. Most of us have probably read about it; I would urge you to do it if you haven't it. It's quite amazing."

Griffin said the clubhouse that Dr. Maloney and the others who donated their time, talent and money to "stands today 40 years later as testament of his love of the game and the tennis community at-large. We, the present members of the Quincy Tennis Club, are benefactors of his dedication to tennis and to the Quincy Tennis Club and so, in turn, today, dedicate this clubhouse in memory of and honor to him, Philip Maloney."

Rebuilding the clubhouse was a major undertaking and a pivotal point in the club's history. There was no guarantee the club - which had been around for 91 years at that point - would continue. Some members abandoned the club; stagnation followed.

Club members looked to Dr. Maloney for leadership and stewardship. He agreed to become club president for a second time and lead the fundraising drive to replace the clubhouse. The new facility opened the following year in 1979.

"Rebuilding the clubhouse required a great deal of effort but my father was one who valued tennis, valued the Quincy Tennis Club and valued the community and this club represents something very good and important in our community," said Tracy Maloney, one of Dr. Maloney's daughters who spoke at the dedication.

According to an account of QTC history, Dr. Maloney organized the talents and skills of many including future honorary members Irving "Joe" Risi and Mildred "Millie" Rickson. Mr. Risi was a master plumber and Mrs. Rickson was in the banking profession as well as a member of the QTC board serving as the treasurer - a position she held for many years.

Dr. Maloney and many others contributed personally (time, skills and finances) to enable the undertaking of the rebuild. Member Andy Dalquist was pivotal in organizing a successful fundraising dinner dance at the Quincy Neighborhood Club located just a short volley from the QTC's driveway on Glendale Road.

As a result of seeing how easily QTC could have been lost, in this second presidency Dr. Maloney established the capital fund. The value of the fund is that over time, sufficient funds are accumulated to enhance the security of the club in the event of another such unforeseen loss as the fire in 1978. Monies from this fund can-

Dr. Maloney understood that the value of the QTC to its members as well as the community at large is immeasurable. His life was one which was marked by excellence, achievement and dedication. His dedication was felt most profoundly by his family, but extended to his profession, his country and community.

QTC - founded in 1887 and now in its 132nd year - is a unique club which at its inception was developed to promote tennis and the physical and social well-being of its members. Dr. Maloney knew the value of the club: he served on the board of governors for 20 years and served two terms as president. Importantly, though he was not president at the time of fire, he stepped up to save the club. Many people have benefited from his effort and will continue to so in the future.

The founders of QTC were more than a century ahead of their time. Researchers in Denmark recently published a long-term study showing that tennis players live longer than people who participate in other activities such as jogging, swimming or bicycling. Tennis players live an average of 9.7 years longer than those who do not exercise at all. The key factor increasing longevity for tennis players as opposed to other activities was the social interaction involved in tennis.

"Dr. Maloney's family is honored to have him posthumously receive the club house dedication," Tracy Maloney said. "Like the founding members of the club, his wish was that QTC would always live on for the joy of playing tennis and the well-being it provides."

Tennis and the Quincy Tennis Club were important cornerstones in Dr. Maloney's remarkable life.

"The Quincy Tennis Club played a huge role in my father's life. If you stand at the base of the driveway you can look up and see the house where he was born,"

Tracy Maloney said at the dedication. "He was a self-taught tennis player and in today's world where everything is so scheduled and regimented and lessoned, he learned by watching others and where did he learn it? He learned the game here," she said from the clubhouse patio overlooking the club's five clay tennis courts.

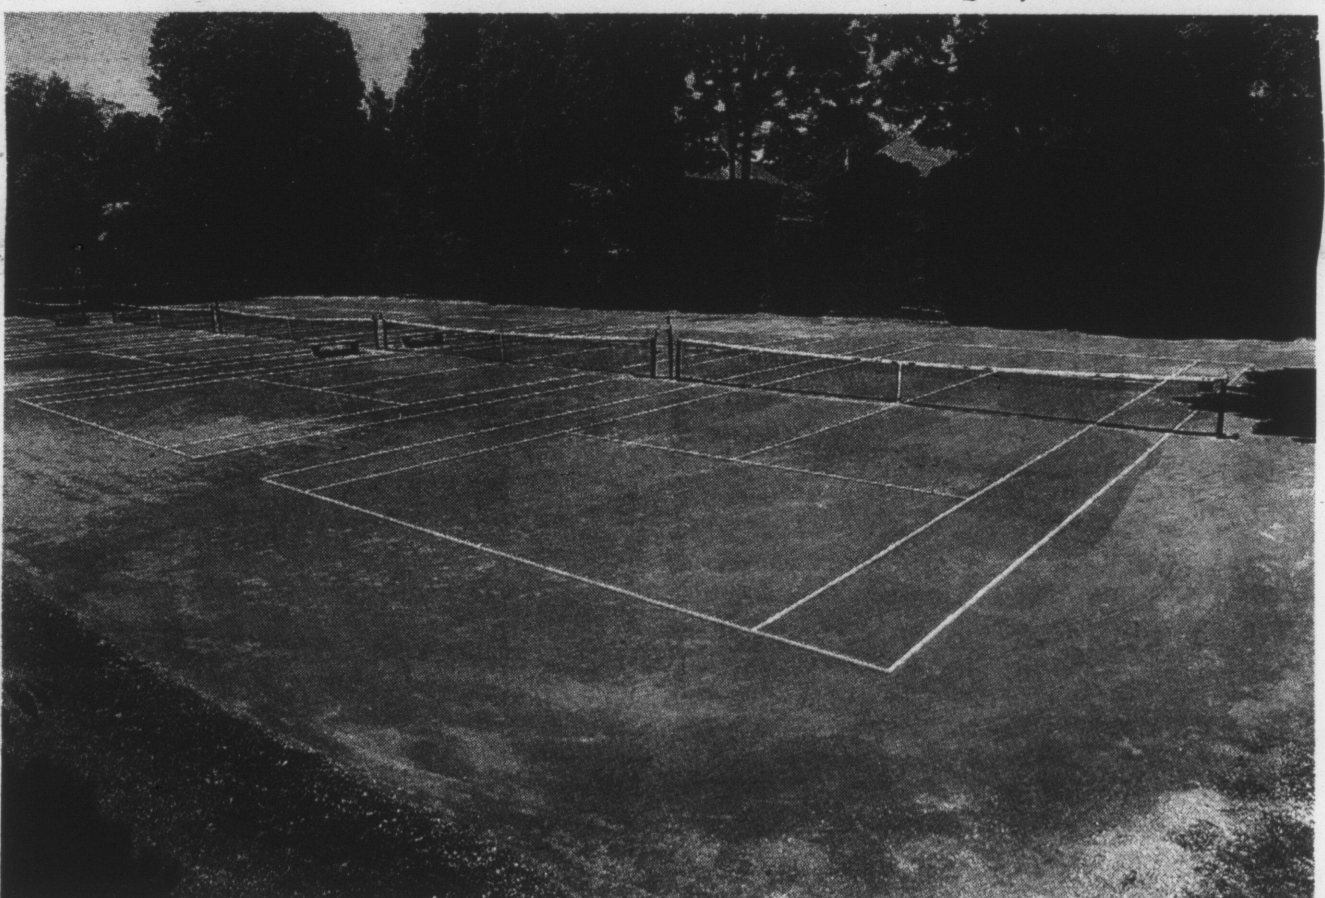

Dr. Maloney attended Boston College High School which did not have a tennis team. Still, he continued to play and improve his skills.

"The game of tennis took him to a state championship in high school, to a national competition where he won the national boys 15-and-under doubles with a pick-up partner at the event which is quite a remarkable achievement and he continued to achieve in tennis throughout his life limiting his competition to New England," Tracy said.

Dr. Maloney's love for tennis was trumped by only his devotion to his family. He would travel out-of-state to competitions only if he could involve his children in the sport.

"He competed in national events only in the family events like father-son and father-daughter but it took him to events in New York, California, Florida and of course you had great competition at that level but he would always remark coming home how fortunate we are to have the (Quincy) tennis club and how superior the playing conditions are," Tracy said. "If you travel to other places you might see beautiful courts but they might have wind, they may not be as thick as shade, but here we are blessed with this beautiful setting that so many people have cared for and nurtured over the years."

Tracy Maloney said he dad was fond of recognizing all those who helped bring the club to where it is today.

"He told me many times that he recognized that decades ago - 100 years ago - someone was pushing the wheelbarrow and I benefit from that because now I play here. So we should all take the time and recognize the events of those presidents, past presidents, people who serve on the board, and people who just do their part in being a good member so this is a place that people enjoy coming to and playing with others and recognizing that we are just here for our period of time but if we hold this and care for this then it's ready for the next generation as well.

"And that's what he would want to be known for - that he participated and he did his part. The call comes not always when you want it or are looking for it," Tracy continued. "Not long before he died we talked about the rebuilding of the clubhouse ... the year was 1979 and reminded me that the oldest of his five children were on their way to college so he was organizing the rebuilding of the club, organizing the finances, raising money, organizing the members who had the skills to contribute, all while preparing to educate five children.

"So when the time calls for you to be called," Tracy said, "even though it may not be the ideal time, the impact you can have can be tremendous. Without this clubhouse being built, it would not have been the club that it is today."

"He would like us all to enjoy it but also to think about the next generation. The Maloney family is honored to have him posthumously receive the clubhouse dedication. Like the founding members of the club, his wish was to be that QTC would always live on for the job of playing tennis and the well-being it provides," she added.

History Of The Quincy Tennis Club - Important Dates, Facts

By RICHARD GRIFFIN
Quincy Tennis Club

Here is a condensed history of the Quincy Tennis Club from documentation taken from QTC 100th and 125th anniversary books.

Saturday, Sept. 3, 1887 - Quincy Tennis Club formally opens, with two courts, at its first location on Bigelow Street, between Bigelow and Elm near the junction of the two streets. Two more courts were added on the other side of the brook, later. These were the first tennis courts in Quincy of which there is record. Dues: $2/yr. men, $1/yr. women. During this time, onlookers watched the play from carriages as well as settees placed along the courts. By the close of the first season there were thirty-two members.

As successful as this club appeared to be, interest in tennis lagged, so that after the 1892 season the club went out of existence.

1900 - Then, in 1900 a new club grew from the interest in tennis of James M. Nowland, Arthur W. Hall, John O. Hall, Jr., Walter E. Burk, Ernest Burk, and a few others, who obtained from Dr. N. S. Hunting permission to build a tennis court or courts on his property on Whitney Road near Woodward Avenue.

The name adopted for the club was "Whitney Road Tennis Club." This title was used for but one year after which the old name of Quincy Tennis Club was revived and has been the official name ever since.

1902 - In 1902, a new clubhouse was built at a cost of about $600 and covered by members' donations.

1912 - In 1912 the club purchased a plot behind the corner of Glendale Road and Goffe Street (now President's Lane) from the Adams Family, its location for the past century. The shingle-style clubhouse - built in 1902 - was moved from the Whitney Road neighborhood to this new lot, now 19R Glendale Rd., that is the current home of the Quincy Tennis Club

1978 - On the night before Thanksgiving in November,

1978, the clubhouse burned beyond repair. The 76 year-old, shingle-style building was a total loss. Dr. Philip L. Maloney, then president, spearheaded the building of a new facility.

1979 - The new clubhouse opened for members of Quincy Tennis Club. This clubhouse stands today, a testimony to Dr. Maloney's love of the game and Quincy Tennis Club which, in his words, he considered "a gift to all of us".

Other points: The club membership at the end of 1901 was 50 men and 9 ladies. These figures fluctuated somewhat from year to year and reached a high for the period in 1909 with 65 men and 21 Women. Junior membership started in 1907 being open to those under 14 years of age at half the regular fee.

Since a low point in membership during World War II, the club has seen a steady increase over the years, until at the present time the membership is approximately 220 members comprised of 30 families, 122 men, 96 women, and 2 in the junior categories.

Morrisette Baseball Off To 5-0 Start

Post 294 Blanks Holbrook 12-0 For Fifth Straight Victory

By TREVOR WENNERS

Morrisette Post 294 handled its business quickly on Monday night at Adams Field.

Post 294 jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the first, and then used a seven-run fourth to sink Holbrook Post 137, 12-0, in four-and-a-half innings during American Legion District 6 action.

Quincy (5-0) has hit the ground running in 2019, defeating Cohasset, 7-0 (June 14), Dedham, 6-5, in eight innings (June 17), Weymouth, 8-4 (June 18), and Hyde Park, 3-2 (June 23).

"I really think we are turning into a family," said starting pitcher Devin Desmond. "I think that will bring us somewhere this season. We are playing well together."

Desmond earned the win on the mound Monday, going the complete five innings, as he gave up no runs and allowed only three hits. He finished with six strikeouts, including five looking, while hitting two batters, and walking one. Desmond got out of a jam in the third, tallying a two-out strikeout with runners on second and third, preserving the shut-out.

From an offensive standpoint, Morrisette tallied 11 hits in four innings. Owen Carberry led the charge at the plate with a 3-for-3 performance, alongside a triple, two singles, two RBIs and two runs. Daniel Scolaro (2 for 3, triple, double, three RBIs, two runs), Curtis Frazier (2 for 3, double, single, two runs) and Stephen Parsons (2 for 2, two singles, three RBIs) also starred.

"We played well and played a good team game," said coach Steve Maze. "We made the plays on defense when we had to and we hit when we needed to. Desmond threw a ton of strikes. I do not care who you are playing, I do not care what your record is, and I do not care if it is the first or last game of the year...the name of the game is pitching. John MacDonald has had two great starts for us, Devin Desmond had a great start Monday night, and Douglas Concannon has had some great starts for us. When that happens, then you put yourself in position to win the game. That is what we have done and it was the same thing on Monday."

During the bottom half of the first, the hosts sent eight players to the batter's box, along with five hits and four runs. Carberry and Frazier tallied back-to-back, one-out singles, and then advanced to third and second, respectively, on a wild pitch. A one-run single up the middle by William McCarthy put Quincy on the board, and then during the ensuing at-bat, Post 294 went up 2-0 on an RBI single to left by MacDonald. The rally ended with a two-out, two-run single to right by Parsons, extending the lead up to 4-0.

Quincy kept rolling with Desmond tallying two strikeouts in each the third and fourth, and during the bottom half of the third, the group tacked on another run with all the damage being done with two outs. Scolaro crushed a double over the left fielder's head, and then trotted across home on an RBI single to left by Parsons, pushing the lead up to 5-0.

"Everyone hit well and played their best," said Desmond. "Everyone was on top of some good swings. We did a good job swinging at the strikes and leaving the high pitches."

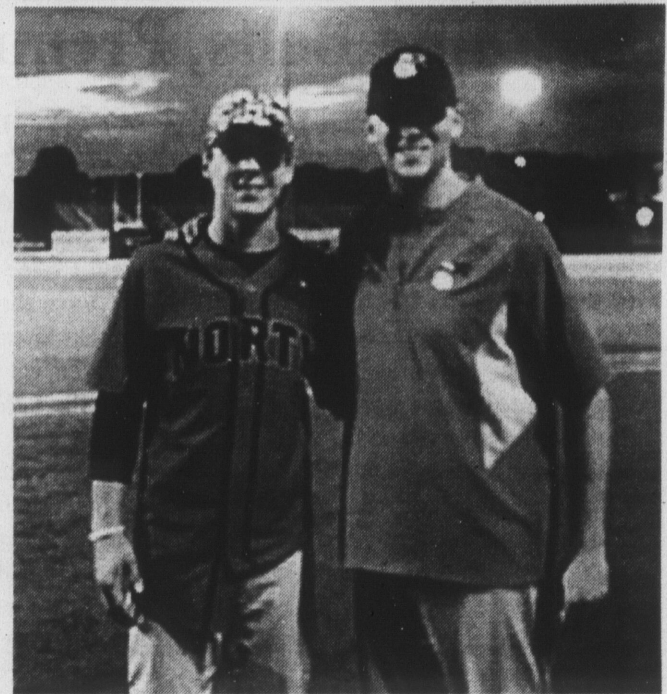

The flood gates opened in the fourth, as a two-run triple with no outs to right by Carberry put Quincy in front, 7-0. A wild pitch during the next at-bat allowed Carberry to touch home with the eighth run. The next three batters worked together to load the bases for Quincy, as Frazier ripped a double to left, McCarthy drew a walk, and MacDonald reached on an error by the right fielder. With the bases juiced and still no one out, Scolaro blasted a triple to left-center, which scored all the other three base runners, and ultimately himself on a throwing error, ending the scoring and putting the team up 12-0.

Desmond kept his foot on the throttle in the top of the fifth, collecting his first 1-2-3 inning of the night. During the frame, second baseman Mark Flynn made a highlight reel stop for the second out on a sharply hit ball, which had base hit written all over it. Post 294's defense did a great job behind Desmond, making no errors.

"I love my team and I love what they do; one through nine in the lineup and 10 through 18 on the bench," said Maze. "Whether they are pitchers or whatever the case is...they have been around. They know what I expect because this is an older team. We lose a lot after this year. I expect them to come out and hit and hit. When we do not play; we are down in the cages hitting. If it is raining out, then we still come down to the cage and hit. I have their back and they have mine, and we can turn this into something special."

On Friday, June 28, Quincy is set to take on host Dedham at Memorial Field with first pitch set for 8 p.m.

Recent North Quincy graduate Danny Ferrara took part in the 42nd Annual Senior Eastern Mass All-Star Game June 19 as part of the South squad.

Ferrara was selected for the game and recognized as one of the best senior baseball players in Eastern Massachusetts after a stellar season for the Raiders (21 hits, .318 average, 4 doubles, HR, 10 RBI, 17 R, and 16 SB). Ferrara also earned North Quincy's team MVP award, and was recognized by the Patriot League and named an All-Star. Danny is attending Suffolk University in the Fall.

Also in attendance at the game was North Quincy Head Coach, Matt Edgerly, who was selected to coach the South team. South won the game, 6-3.

Emma Papile On Academic All-Conference Team

Emma Papile of Quincy, a student-athlete on the Lasell College women's soccer team, was recently named to the Great Northeast Athletic Conference (GNAC) 2018-19 Academic All-Conference team.

She was among 101 Lasell College student-athletes honored.

This year's list consists of 1,030 student-athletes from 13 full-time institutions and nine associate member institutions who have met the following criteria: maintaining a 3.25 cumulative grade point average, completed at least one full season of competition at a GNAC institution and is at least sophomore academically.

Five Quincy Students On Emmanuel Dean's List

Five students from Quincy have been named to the Dean's List for the spring semester at Emmanuel College in Boston.

They are: Mingyi Jiang, Courtney Ann Simon, Rahel Sirack, Amanda Tran and Shishi Zeng.

John Furey To Lead QC Cross Country

Quincy native, QHS cross country and track runner, and coach John Furey will lead Quincy College Granite men's and women's cross country in their inaugural season of competitive play as part of National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) Region XXI.

Furey has over 33 years of experience coaching runners of all ability levels. To date, he has coached over 3,000 Boston Marathon Charity runners since the program began in 1996. From 1998 to 2019, Furey was the head coach of Men's and Women's cross country team at Emerson College.

The addition of Coach Furey to Quincy College Athletics staff was a natural fit according to Quincy College Athletics Director John Raymer.

"Quincy College is fortunate to work with Coach Furey," Raymer said. "Our Athletics program will benefit from his years of expertise as an athlete, educator, and coach. With Coach Furey's leadership and our student athletes, we are pleased to join Region XXI of National Junior College Athletic Association competitive cross country."

Furey holds a Bachelor of Science from Eastern Nazarene College and a Masters of Science in exercise physiology from Bridgewater State University. Furey also holds several exercise science certifications including American College of Sports Medicine Personal Trainer and Health Instructor Certifications, National Association of Sport Medicine Corrective Exercise Specialist Certification and teaches Basic Life Support.

"The idea of starting a new program from the ground up was the main factor in my desire to coach at Quincy College," Furey said. "I grew up in Quincy, I've run in Quincy. I want to introduce a love of the sport to runners of all abilities and levels at Quincy College. I'm excited to start the inaugural season and am actively recruiting high school runners, adults returning to school who are passionate about exercise, and those first time runners who may be back of the pack."

Quincy College Cross Country will join NJCAA Region 21 - comprised of 2-year colleges in Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Rhode Island in competitive play - offering men's basketball and men's soccer along with women and men's cross country for the 2019-2020 season. The Quincy College men's and women's cross country team will face other local area teams including University of Connecticut - Avery Point, Holyoke Community College, Quinsigamond Community College, Northern Essex Community College, Bunker Hill Community College, and Community College of Rhode Island.

Quincy College Granite Cross Country will competitively run in four meets throughout the Fall 2019-2020 Season, two meets in September and two in October. The team will start training on Sept. 5th.

There are no formal tryouts for the team, everyone who would like to participate will be welcomed to join the QC Granite cross country team. The team will practice at Quincy High School Track and will run the hills near Hospital Hill and trails near Pageant Field.

REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS (RFP) HOUSING REHABILITATION SPECIALIST CITY OF QUINCY QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS

NOTICE

In accordance with M.G.L. Chapter 30B and Ch. 149 (if applicable), The City of Quincy acting on behalf of the City of Quincy Planning Department, is requesting proposals for the services of a Housing Rehabilitation Specialist for Quincy's federally funded housing programs activities pursuant to MGL Chapter 30B, as amended. Proposals will be received at the office of the Purchasing Department; City Hall; 1305 Hancock Street; Quincy, MA 02169, until Thursday, July 9, 2019, at 11:00 a.m.

The selected Housing Rehabilitation Specialist will join in a contract agreement with PCD for the time period of not to exceed one year from the execution of the contract, for non-exclusive on-call services to assist PCD with various projects and programs as needed. Other City Departments may also utilize these services as needed.

Detailed specifications are available on-line at the City of Quincy's website, www.quincyma.gov and also available at the office of the Purchasing Agent, Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, Massachusetts, 02169, between the hours of 8:30 AM and 4:30 PM. 6/27/19

Timing Belts, Premium Fuel, Transmission Leak, Tire Rotation

Ask John Paul: AAA New England's Car Doctor

We have a 2011 Honda Accord and the right axle seal was leaking. This work was performed in mid-May. At the same time, I was told the right outer constant velocity joint boot was leaking. The dealer didn't have the axle-shaft parts and I needed to come in two weeks later. My question is shouldn't these repairs have been performed at the same time? Aren't the seal and the C/V Boot in relatively the same area?

Your Honda uses an outer-axle and an intermediate axle shaft. The outer axle connects to the intermediate shaft which in turn connects to the transmission where the inner axle seal was leaking. To replace the axle seal, you would need to remove the axle shaft. To replace the C/V boot you would need to at least partially disassemble the steering/suspension system to perform the repair. In my opinion there would be at least some labor overlap if both repairs were completed at the same time. If this were my car I would go back to the dealer and ask them to either adjust the bill or give you a credit for future service.

My 2006 Honda Odyssey had timing belt replaced 60,000 miles ago in 2011. The Honda dealer now recommends a new timing belt because it is eight years old. What do you think?

I believe the dealer is giving you good information. It is the combination of time and mileage that can cause timing belt failure. The engine in the Honda Odyssey is considered an interference engine. If the timing belt fails, the valves and pistons will collide causing catastrophic engine damage. At the same time the repair technician should also inspect the water pump and timing belt tensioner.

We recently purchased two new vehicles with General Motors 2.0-liter turbocharged engines. The cars are great, providing us with 50 percent better mileage than their V6 and V8 predecessors with no difference in performance. We have been using regular gas as opposed to the recommended premium fuel. Are we doing any long-term damage to the cars?

If the vehicle owner's manual "recommends" premium fuel it is permissible to use 87 octane fuel and you will not have any long-term issues. If the manual states premium fuel is required it is necessary to use only premium fuel. Several years ago, AAA engineering performed several scientific tests and found that even in vehicles that showed a slight increase in horsepower or fuel economy, the extra cost of premium fuel didn't offset any mile per gallon benefit. Rather than spend money on higher octane fuel, purchase TopTier gasoline. It has additional additives that minimize combustion chamber deposits which helps with overall performance.

We spend five months of the year in our Las Vegas home where we keep a 2010 Honda Civic, which I purchased new. It currently has approximately 13,500 miles on it. Other than once a year oil changes and a one-time replacement of the coolant, I haven't done anything else to maintain the vehicle. Are there other things I should do when I next arrive back in Las Vegas at the end of October to properly maintain my Honda? Obviously, we don't put many miles on it each season, but I want to keep it in the best condition possible.

Many parts can just fail due to age. I would have a general service shop or dealer take a look at the car and give it an overall checkup. Rubber parts such as tires, drive belts, coolant hoses, flexible brake lines can all fail with age. In addition, I would look at the mechanical aspects of the brake system. The brake calipers can stick, from lack of use and the brake fluid can become contaminated. The typical life of a battery in the Northeast is about five years and shorter in Las Vegas heat, so it would make sense to look at the battery, charging system and starting system.

I haven't been able to find anyone who can explain this problem. I own a 2005 Honda Accord that I've had since new. When the car is off, the clock and the light for the clock flicker on and off. Typically, the light is on for 20 or so seconds and off for 3 seconds. This problem started about two months ago. The only thing I have ever added to this car was an aftermarket radio, but that was five years ago, and this problem has been recent. What do you think the problem is and can I just disconnect the clock?

Odd electrical issues similar to this are usually related to the wiring, a faulty diode or a poorly solder joint in the clock or in the circuit that powers the clock. You can't simply disconnect the clock since it is part of the climate control system. There is a large plug, that connects to the back of the air conditioner/heater dashboard control that also incorporates the clock. One thing to try that sometimes fixes odd electrical issues, disconnect the battery and touch the disconnected positive and negative cables together. This will in essence reset the electrical system. Then connect the battery-positive cable first then negative cable. If this doesn't work, short of putting a piece of tape over the clock, I would suggest going to a specialist that specializes in wiring repairs.

We are the original owners of a 1997 Honda Accord now with 101,000 miles on it. It's been leaking some fluid on the garage floor for several years. My mechanic says it's leaking transmission fluid, yet the level seems okay each time it is checked. We are now in our 80s and not able to buy a new car. My mechanic says not to use transmission stop-leak. What should I do?

Transmission stop-leak swells the seals has been blamed for causing additional problems. You never actually stated where in the transmission the leak was coming from. If it is a minor leak, it certainly would make sense to have it fixed. If it is a minor leak with an expensive price tag it makes more sense just to check the fluid periodically and add as required to keep the fluid level in the "safe" zone.

I own a 2009 Mazda 3 with 126,000 miles. The last two times that I had the car serviced at two different service centers, I was told the tires did not need to be rotated, even though I had requested that service. I have always had the tires rotated every 5,000 or so miles and am baffled by this, considering it was two different places and would have had to pay for the service. Has the thinking on tire rotation practices changed?

Mazda recommends that the tires on your car get rotated every 7500 miles. My shops that I know of to try to save their customers a little money will look at the tires on their vehicle and if wearing evenly will suggest not rotating them. The reason is that in some cases during tire rotate some vehicles (not yours) require reprogramming of the tire pressure sensors. According to Mazda the labor to rotate four tires is four-tenths of an hour. At today's labor rates this could be $50 or more.

My 2008 Dodge Dakota V8 pickup regularly shows a check engine light. We've had a Dodge dealer perform a self-test which passed, and then a computer reset. We have also replaced the gas cap and a vent valve on the gas tank and purge-valve. The check engine light continues. Any suggestions?

I would suggest still working with the original shop that is trying to diagnose the issue. If the check engine light is coming on a computer fault code is being set. Although the code will not pinpoint the exact cause it will point the technician in the right direction. Some of even the best shops will rely on third party technical assistance service such as Identifix to help the technician with previously verified repairs.

I'm always interested in advice columns: personal, home improvement and cars. I learn things from all of them, even about cars. Now I need a little advice. My new Hyundai Sonata (2.4-liter engine) is a year old and has 7,800 miles on it and I have had the oil changed twice. Recently I received a email reminder from the car dealer that stated my car is overdue for its 15,000 mile service. I just had the oil changed in the last month or so. What should I do?

According to the Hyundai's owner's manual the oil should be changed every 7,500 miles or 12 months whichever comes first. The recommendation is most likely based on average driving and not your specific driving style and habits. To me it sounds like you are taking good care of your vehicle.

The owner's manual for my 2014 Honda Accord implies that I need to get any new tires at a Honda dealer, otherwise the tire pressure warning system will no longer work. Is this true or just a marketing ploy? Is it necessary to replace the valves and transmitters when changing the tire? Can tire dealers perform the steps needed to register the new valves and transmitters?

You can purchase tires anywhere for your Honda Accord. The tire pressure warning systems won't need to be reprogrammed if the wheels are put back in the same location. If the tires are not put back in the same location, nearly every tire store and many general service shops have tire pressure (TPMS) monitor programming tools. Regarding the life of a TPM sensor, most will last seven to ten years. I would expect the sensors in your vehicle to last through the next set of tires before the batteries that power the sensors fail.

I haven't had cars with problems, but now I do. We have a 2012 Audi A6 with only 66,000 miles on it. The dealer says that one rear differential seal "is just starting to leak" and will cost about more than $1,000 to replace. What is going on here and do I really need to replace it?

I would start with a second opinion to determine what is actually wrong and to see what is meant by just starting to leak. It is not unusual for some seals to have a slight amount of seepage as they age. The seals in the rear differential run any where from $20 to $250 and can take up to five hours to replace. After the second opinion you should be able to determine if this is a case of a part needing replacement or "watchful-waiting."

JOHN PAUL
AAA's Car Doctor

I have a 2017 BMW 5 series diesel wagon which may be one of the best vehicles that I have owned except for one thing. Periodically the check engine light will come on and go into some sort of fail-safe mode. I shut the car off, wait a couple of minutes and restart it and all is fine. This has happened 4 - 5 times in the past 18 months. The dealer just shrugs it off and tells me they can't do anything if the car is running fine. Short of having the car towed with the engine running to demonstrate is to the dealer, what do I do?

I did a little research and it looks like BMW did issue a technical service bulletin that describes this problem. The repair involves a wiring harness repair. I would return to the dealer and ask them to review any pertinent technical bulletins that apply to this condition.

When I once worked on cars there were alternators and voltage regulators and that is about all you needed to know if a car battery died. Now from what I understand computers are part of the equation. Why is everything so complex?

The electrical system is one of the most important systems in today's vehicles. Recently I was reading about a Chevrolet Malibu that came into a shop with multiple computer codes and a dead battery. The shop replaced the battery, but the problems remained. The problem was a faulty generator control module. It is extremely critical with so many computers on today's cars that the electrical system operates perfectly. Before computer controls this precise voltage monitoring wasn't as necessary.

I have a 2007 Ford F-250 that I used as a plow truck and now just use for trips to the dump. Recently there was a noise under the truck, and it was the exhaust rattling. When the truck was on the lift, the mechanic called me out in the shop and the frame looked like swiss-cheese and the brake lines were all rotted as well. I know the truck is 12 years old but is this normal and why didn't I get any warning? By the way what do you think of the new Ford Ranger pick-up?

You are not the only person with a rusted-out Ford pick-up truck. The problem with rust is that the vehicle can perform perfectly until it rusts into pieces. The rust we are seeing now is at least partially attributed to the chemicals that are put on the roads to prevent freezing in winter. Periodic inspections would have given you a hint of things to come. Regarding the Ford Ranger, I have yet to drive one and have only seen two on the road. When I did first see the Ranger on the road it was bigger than I expected and, in my opinion, may compete too closely with the Ford F-150.

I recently had the front brakes repaired at my auto repair shop which I authorized and was surprised when I got the bill that the car needed both brake pads and rotors. In years past I was always able to get at least two and sometimes three sets of brake pads to one set of brake rotors. I trust my mechanic but what is going on with brakes in newer cars that they wear out so easily.

There was a time when brake rotors were "overbuilt", they were heavy and larger than they needed to be. Today vehicle designers and engineers are constantly trying to save weight and build safe efficient vehicles. Today the modern braking system in a vehicle is better than it has ever been. Stopping times are reduced, pedal feedback is great and in many cases brake pad life is quite good. The downside is that as brake pads need replacement it is typical that the brake rotors are worn, warped or pitted and need to be replaced. That being said the replacement of brake pads and rotors together deliver in my opinion a better stopping experience.

On Wednesday, June 19, at approximately 2:20 p.m., Officer James Parisi was on patrol driving by the strip mall on Granite Street when his attention was drawn to two Loss Prevention Officers (known to him from frequent incidents) from TJ Maxx following a male in the parking lot.

Quincy Police Communications then dispatched cruisers to the store for a shoplifting in progress.

As Officer Parisi pulled into the lot, the Loss Prevention Officers pointed to the male suspect. The officer approached the suspect, told him to stop and advised him that he was investigating a crime of shoplifting. The suspect started walking away from the officer after repeated orders to stop, so the officer took hold of his arm and again told him to stop. The suspect adamantly stated that he didn't do anything and took another step away with the officer still holding his arm.

The suspect, who was three inches taller and 25 pounds heavier and appeared to be in good physical condition continued to move away. He was holding a cell phone in his hand, which concerned the officer because this could be a potential weapon.

With the suspect's refusal to obey reasonable and simple commands and fearing the situation would escalate if not quickly controlled, the officer told the suspect to put his hands behind his back. Instead of complying, the suspect tried turning to face the officer directly in close quarters, so Officer Parisi attempted to place the suspect's arm behind his back. Instead of complying, the suspect started to drop his hand to his waist near the front of his right hip.

Concerned he was trying to access a weapon or setting himself up to hit the officer with his phone, the officer used an arm bar move to guide him to the ground. The technique brought the suspect to the ground where he immediately started trying to gain a position of advantage by getting on his side while using his legs to kick at the officer. During one of these attempts, the officer felt a sharp stinging sensation and later discovered his knee was bleeding.

The suspect continued to resist as Officer Parisi requested assistance over the radio. Officers Potter, Goggin and Donovan arrived moments later and after a brief struggle, the suspect was handcuffed. At this time, Officer Parisi was able to interview the Loss Prevention Officers who said that they witnessed the suspect steal merchandise, hide it in his back pack and walk out the store. When they confronted him and told him to return what he had taken, he denied taking anything. After calling the police, they kept watch on him. The Loss Prevention Officers commented that during the struggle it looked like the suspect was trying to bite the officer on the arm.

The stolen merchandise was returned to the store. In addition to being trespassed from the store, the suspect, a 26-year-old Quincy resident, was charged with shoplifting, resisting arrest, disorderly conduct and two counts of assault and battery on a police officer. He also had four outstanding warrants. Nice Work!

SCAM: a citizen alerted me to a scam that happened in Quincy. On Sunday, June 16 at approximately 1 p.m., a 52-year old woman (the victim) was landscaping when she was approached by a red car. In the car was a thin woman, a man and a baby of 6-8 months. The woman initiated the conversation by begging for financial help.

There was a language barrier so at first, the victim thought that the woman was asking for money for gas. The woman clarified, "No - I need cash. My baby is hungry and I have a lot of gold chains. I'm from Dubai and I am very rich. I came from New York but I lost all my IDs."

The victim offered to call the police to get them some help but the lady said that she already went there. At this point, the victim suspected this was a scam.

The woman asked the victim if she wanted to see her baby (it was crying), so the man in the car rolled down the window revealing a baby. The victim said, "All I have is $100 in my pocket." As she was counting the 1s, 5s and 10s, the man exited the car. The woman then asked the victim if she had $700 to buy all her gold and the Rolex watch that the man took off his wrist.

The woman, feeling threatened and sensing danger, said she could give them money if they would go back in the car. The woman told the man to go back into the car and then tried to haggle for more money. The victim said that she only had $100.

The woman gave the victim a gold chain and a ring and told her she could take one for the money. The victim said she didn't want the jewelry and was only giving money because of concern for the baby. The victim said at that point the woman got back in the car and they drove off.

Scams involving jewelry are not new. Using a baby preys on a victim's emotions. Other variations of this scam asks for gas money to get home to emergencies or for food. The jewelry in question is usually valued at less than $10!

Although this type of scam is rare and is usually done by people passing through, please call the Quincy Police at 617-479-1212 or 9-1-1 depending upon the circumstances. Try to gather as much information as possible such as the license plate, make and color of car, description of the occupants, etc.

SPOOFING TELEPHONE NUMBER OF THE QUINCY POLICE: Spoofing is the act of impersonation and this recently was done by a scammer placing phone calls with "Quincy Police" show up on the victim's caller ID display.

This is not a new tactic and various legitimate agencies have shown up in the display, such as the IRS and Social Security. What follows usually is a recorded message demand-

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Don't be surprised if, in spite of your well-made plans, something goes awry. But don't worry. Your knowledge of the facts plus your Arian charm will help you work it out.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A personal relationship seems to be demanding more than you feel you're able to give. Best advice: Confront the issue. You could find the situation surprisingly easy to work through.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Resist being pressured into meeting your self-imposed deadline. This is important if you really feel that taking more time to finish a project could save time in the long run.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A vacation choice seems less interesting than when you first made it. Could it be a matter of the place or the people going with you? Find out before you consider a change of plans.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Someone might be overriding your Leonine logic to get you to agree to "favors" that you would normally avoid. Take a new look at what you've been asked to do and see if you've been misled.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Try to keep that emerging "judgmental" aspect in check this week. Too many critiques on relatively unimportant issues could create a lot of negative bounce-back reactions.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Facing unpleasant facts about an associate isn't easy. But ignoring them isn't wise. Ask a trusted (and neutral) friend to help guide you on what to do and how you might do it.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A shift in opinion regarding a workplace situation could go a long way in vindicating the stand you've taken. But be aware that a satisfactory resolution could still be a long way off.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) It's not like you to choose the easy way rather than the right way to do things. So, follow your instincts and feel assured they will lead you to the right decision. Good luck.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Hold off on making a personal commitment until you find out what it really entails and whose interests are actually involved. There could be hidden facts you need to know.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A new friend offers an unexpected opportunity that could lead to a career change. Check it out carefully and consider getting an assessment from someone familiar with this field.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A surprising discovery leads to mixed reactions from those involved in the "revelation." But as you come to appreciate the truth, you'll be able to come to terms with your feelings.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your love of travel helps you appreciate the wonders of the world. You would find a satisfying career in any travel-related industry.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Ben Affleck quit playing Batman after only two films, but producers are confident they've found their new "Caped Crusader" in Robert Pattinson. Pattinson recently filmed director Christopher Nolan's "Tenet," with Michael Caine (who played Alfred in Nolan's trilogy, including "The Dark Knight"). Pattinson also will be seen in five other films -- "The Lighthouse," "The King" (for Netflix), "The Devil All the Time," "Waiting for the Barbarians" and "The Stars at Noon" -- before we see him as Batman in a trilogy of films, starting June 25, 2021.

With the success of "Bohemian Rhapsody" (about Queen's Freddie Mercury) and "Rocketman" (about Elton John), MGM plans to make a bio-pic about George Alan O'Dowd, aka Boy George. At age 21, Boy George and Culture Club hit it big in 1982 with "Do You Really Want to Hurt Me," which sold 100 million singles and 20 million albums. By 1986, touring and performing pressures allegedly drove him to severe drug use, and the group disbanded. In 1988, they regrouped to minor success until 1999, when they again broke up. In 2013, Boy George went solo to great success and was again backed by Culture Club. There's a lot of drama in this story, but whether Boy George (now 57) was ever popular enough or can appeal to young people today is the question.

We told you how Woody Allen is suing Amazon for (c) 2019 King Features Synd., Inc.

backing out of distributing his latest film, "A Rainy Day in New York," and three others, so he moved his distribution to France, where it will premiere Sept. 18 and hopefully spread to other cities in Europe, making it irresistible to U.S. distributors. A few years back, Allen complained that it was too expensive to shoot in the U.S. but eventually came back anyway. Now he's moved his operation to Spain and is currently filming his next opus, "Wasp 2019," with Christoph Waltz, Wallace Shawn (of Woody's "Manhattan") and TV's "Young Sheldon") and Gina Gershon. It's a romantic comedy about a married couple at the San Sebastian Film Festival.

Lin-Manuel Miranda, who took Broadway by storm with "Hamilton" and movie theaters with "Mary Poppins Returns," has come back to his roots to film his 2007 Tony Award-winning musical, "In the Heights." It starts shooting June 26 with Susan Pourfar, Anthony Ramos, Melissa Barrera and Jimmy Smits. Cloris Leachman, 93, who won an Oscar for "The Last Picture Show" (1971), seven Emmys (including for "The Mary Tyler Moore Show") and a Golden Globe (for "Phyllis"), not to mention a dynamic turn on "Dancing With the Stars," has begun shooting her 82nd film, "Jump, Darling," in which she plays the grandmother of a drag queen. No joke needed here!

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Fourth of July Inspires Chinese Punch Bowl

Be careful when using old reference books. Modern research methods, excavations and old documents that were unknown for years have led to changed histories. The Chinese Export porcelain dishes that picture the signers of the Declaration of Independence originally were thought to be made about 1820 when they copied an 1817 painting by John Trumbull. The men posed while signing the document had Chinese faces, because the decorators probably had never seen a Caucasian man. Full sets were made in this pattern. Collectors and museums paid high prices for examples in the 1950s to 1970s. When the existing examples were studied, slight differences in the decoration led to the belief that this design was made for much of the 19th century. It probably was available during the 1876 Philadelphia celebration of the Centennial of the Declaration of Independence. This led to lower prices, but large or unique pieces remain popular and high priced. A punch bowl with a diameter of 11 1/2 inches sold several years ago at a Skinner auction in Boston for $5,228. It pictured 13 blue stars, the men in groups, and a spread-winged eagle with a body that looks like the Union Shield.

Q: I heard a story that the first "Star Wars" toys were offered for sale before they were made, so the company sold an IOU letter for the first toy characters and more. Is that true? How long was it after the movie was shown before the toys were for sale?

A: The first "Star Wars" movie was released May 25, 1977. Kenner Products, a Cincinnati toy company, had bought the rights to make toys based on the film. But there was not enough time to make small plastic figures, just board games. The popularity of the movie signaled that the toys would be bestsellers, so they sold an IOU for $11.99 that could be redeemed at Christmas for an early-bird box of puzzles, stickers, membership in the Star Wars Club, Luke Skywalker's autograph and future delivery of the four figures. The toys were delivered in March 1978.

Of course the early-bird box, the contents, and the first toys are the Star Wars collectors' "holy grails." It is said that a package in great condition would sell for $7,500 or more. There have been eight movies and more, and another movie due later this year. Their popularity adds to the fame and price of the memorabilia.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was famed Irish author George Bernard Shaw who made the following sage observation: "A government which robs Peter to pay Paul can always depend on the support of Paul."

* Although we tend to think of the bikini as a modern fashion innovation, two-piece bathing suits can be seen in murals in the ancient city of Pompeii.

* If you're a fan of the "Star Trek" franchise, you might want to plan a trip to the capital of Sweden. It was in Stockholm last year that the world's first Klingon tourist center opened.

* There seems to be quite a rivalry between the towns of Rosehill, North Carolina, and Wilmington, Delaware. Both locales claim to be the home of the world's largest frying pan, with a diameter of 10 feet. This begs some questions, of course: How many eggs are being fried at once to require such a large piece of cookware? And what sort of stove is required to heat such a mammoth pan?

* If you're like most Americans, you've stolen from your employer -- though probably not much. It seems that 58% of your fellow citizens admit to taking office supplies for personal use.

* The London-based 40FT Brewery has an unusual beer on its list of offerings: Odius Ale. Its claim to fame? It's brewed using yeast collected from writer Roald Dahl's chair.

* There was a time when cartoon character Fred Flintstone appeared in ads for Winston cigarettes.

* I don't know who studies such things, but those who do say that over the course of a lifetime, you'll probably spend about three years in the restroom.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* With summer storm season upon us, I feel like it's a good time for some advice. In addition to having a gallon of water per person per day for at least three days for drinking, cooking and minor sanitation, fill bathtubs or even a lined garbage can with water to be able to manually flush your toilet. If you live on well water, your pump will not work; your water lines may be cut off or compromised. Be prepared. -- JoAnn

* "High winds from storms can find their way through a crack in your home's defenses and put an incredible strain on the house. Keep both interior and exterior doors and your home's windows closed for the duration of any storm. This includes any smaller access windows and garage windows. It helps to keep the pressure compartmentalized. So, don't open your door to see how windy it is, because it might let the storm tear off your roof!" -- V.R. in North Carolina

* "Major storm headed your way? When service goes down, I know I celebrate the moment the lights come back on, but electronics aren't always so joyful. A simple overhead light or table lamp will be able to alert you that the power is back on, but it's unlikely to be fried by surges that sometimes precede a full return of service. Unplug nonessentials to protect them from power surges." -- A.A. in Florida

* "If you own a home in an earthquake-prone area, be sure you know how to turn off gas lines. Find the tool you need to do it, and keep it in a special place, preferably right where you'd use it." -- L.W. in Oregon

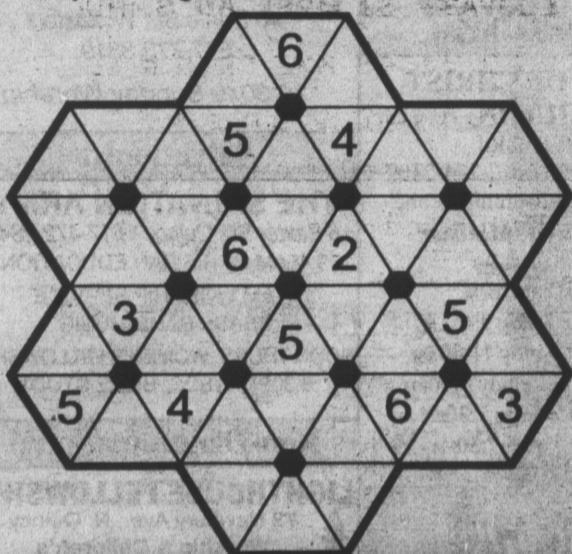

* Fridge out? Try this hurricane hack: Put the contents in your washing machine, packed with ice. As the ice melts, the water drains away rather than drowning the contents. You can add more ice or just keep it closed and covered to get away with a day or two if you insulate well.

OBITUARIES

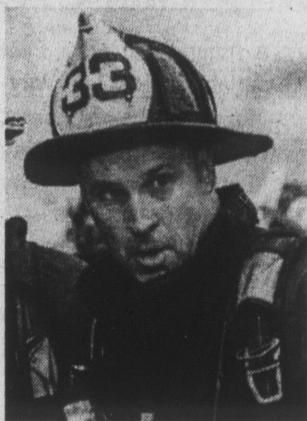

Paul V. Hoban, 57

A Mass of Christian Burial for Paul V. Hoban, age 57, Boston Fire Department lieutenant of Quincy, formerly of Roslindale, was celebrated Monday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Hoban died suddenly at his home June 16.

Born in Boston, he was a son of the late Robert and Ann (Cushing) Hoban. Paul was a 1979 graduate of Xaverian Bros. High School. He was a United States Navy veteran, serving in the Middle East.

Mr. Hoban joined the Boston Fire Department in 1989 and served in many neighborhoods across the city, most recently in Dorchester at the Engine 16, Ladder 6 station on Gallivan Boulevard. He participated in extensive training and received numerous certifications with the department including HazMat, EMT, and Dive Team. Mr.

PAUL V. HOBAN

Hoban was a first responder during the 2013 Boston Marathon Bombing. His efforts and heroism throughout the years have saved countless lives.

Kayur P. Shah, Esq., 36

A celebration of life service for Kayur Pravin "K" Shah, Esq., age 36, of Quincy, formerly of Weymouth, was held June 21 at Merrymount Beach.

Mr. Shah died June 17 at home, surrounded by his family and friends. He battled stage IV lung cancer along with the autoimmune disease scleroderma for two and a half years with courage, grace, humility, and almost always a smile.

Mr. Shah was born in Umreth, India, and immigrated as a child to the United States in November of 1986. He had lived in Quincy for nine years, previously living in Weymouth for over twenty years.

He received his Bachelor's degree from Clark University and his Juris Doctor degree from Roger Williams University School of Law in Rhode Island. He served as an assistant regional counsel for the Massachusetts Department of Children and Families from 2011 to 2016. While at DCF, Mr. Shah represented front line social workers protecting children from abuse and neglect. He was passionate about helping children in need and treated everyone he encountered with respect and dignity.

In 2016, Mr. Shah opened his own practice, Kayur P. Shah, Attorney at Law in Quincy, but his most important job was as husband and father. He loved spending time with his family at cookouts, holidays, and get-togethers. He enjoyed cheering on Boston sports teams, especially the New England Patriots, and loved playing sports with his son, Lucas. Mr. Shah also enjoyed trips to North Conway, sharing stories, events at the beach, or a good debate with anyone.

KAYUR P. SHAH

Beloved husband for nine years of Christine M. "Chrissy" (Niosi) Shah. Devoted father of four-year old Lucas J. Shah. Loving son of Pravin R. and Sudha P. (Ghabawala) Shah of Rockland. Dear brother of Sejal Shah of Rockland, Shital (Shah) Meh-ta and her husband Pranav of Connecticut. Cherished uncle of Om and Shriya. He was son-in-law of Peter and Donna Niosi, and brother-in-law of Jacqui Niosi and Donna Niosi, all of Quincy. He is also survived by many relatives, friends, and colleagues.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy. Funeral services were private.

'Adopt-An-Island' Opportunities Available

Mayor Thomas Koch announces the city's "Adopt-an-Island" program has some opportunities available for interested businesses and community groups.

The successful program allows private entities to maintain public areas in return for a small sign recognizing their commitment to beautifying the community. This public-private partnership is more than 22 years old and has helped beautify traffic islands and public squares throughout Quincy.

"First, I want to thank all those folks that participate in our existing adopt-an-island program," Koch said. "Our beautification efforts are augmented by the commitment of so many to keeping our city looking great. I further want to encourage businesses and community groups, not currently involved, to think about joining this mutually-beneficial program."

People interested in learning more about the program can call the Department of Natural Resources at (617) 376-1251. In return for keeping the adopted area neat, clean, and beautiful the City places a small, uniform program sign in the area with the name of the sponsoring business or group.

"Beautification is a team effort," said Commissioner of Natural Resources Dave Murphy. "We encourage businesses not only to join this program but also to take pride in their own properties. Some of our businesses do a great job already but some could do better. I hope that beautification is contagious and more people pitch in to keep Quincy looking great."

PUBLIC NOTICE 2019 - 126

Presently pending in the Ordinance Committee of the Quincy City Council to be passed at a later date:

BE IT ORDAINED by the City Council of the City of Quincy that Title 5 - Business Licenses and Regulations - of the Municipal Code be hereby amended as follows:

Add the following:

Section 5.50 Trespass Towing Regulations -

5.50.010 Purpose. It is the purpose of this Ordinance to establish specific standards and procedures, consistent with the provisions of General Laws Chapter 266, s. 120D, relative to vehicle towing companies and so-called "trespass tows", whereby a motor vehicle is to be towed from a private parking lot or other privately-owned property or way upon the request of a property owner or other person in lawful control of property.

(a) Definitions:

(1) Trespass Tows: A circumstance whereby a motor vehicle is to be towed from private property by a towing service at the request of a private property owner.

When not inconsistent with the context, words in the singular form shall include the plural form. The word "shall" is always mandatory and not merely directory.

(b) Authority: The provisions of this Ordinance are intended to be consistent with and not in conflict with the provisions of General Laws Chapter 266, s. 120D governing the removal of motor vehicles from private ways or property.

5.50.020 Standards and Procedures. Before a vehicle is to be towed as a Trespass Tow with the cost to be borne by the vehicle owner or operator, the following conditions shall be met in their entirety:

1) Notice to Owner/Operator: The person or entity who has lawful control of such private property shall provide fair notice, either by direct communication or by posting said notice, that parking on such private property constitutes a trespass and that violators are subject to trespass towing of a vehicle in violation of the notice. Posted notice must be prominently displayed at each entrance to the property in such a manner that a reasonable person should know that parking at the location without consent of the property owner will result in a trespass tow the vehicle owner/operator's expense. This notice requirement shall not apply to private residential property.

2) Police Notification: No vehicle shall be removed from any private property or way without the consent of the vehicle's owner or operator unless and until notification has been made to the Quincy Police Department that such vehicle is to be removed. Notification shall be made to a police department dispatcher in person or by telephone. Upon receipt of the trespass tow notification, an entry into the Quincy Police CAD shall be made.

A) Police Notification Standards - Notification to the police department shall include the following:

1. Name and address of the person or entity in lawful control of the private property who/which is directing that a vehicle be removed;
2. Address from which vehicle is to be towed;
3. Name and address of towing service and name or employee number of tow truck operator;
4. Address and telephone number of storage facility where vehicle is to be stored;
5. Vehicle description, including registration tag and state, VIN#, make model and color;
6. The means by which the vehicle operator had notice that parking was prohibited on private property (i.e. verbally or by prominently posted signage);
7. Whether entry into vehicle's interior was required and reason for that intrusion;
8. All "trespass tow" private property locations shall be on file with the Quincy Police Department prior to any towing operations.

B) Penalties - Any person who violates the Standards and Procedures as set forth above by unlawfully removing a vehicle or who otherwise violates said Standards and Procedures, shall immediately release and return said vehicle to the owner or lawful operator at no expense to said owner or lawful operator, and shall be subject to a fine of not more than $100.00 for each offense, consistent with the provisions of General Laws Chapter 266, s.120D. The employer, if any, of such person who unlawfully removes a vehicle shall additionally be subject to a fine of not more than $100.00 for each offense.

C) Towing, Transportation and Storage Fees - The registered owner of a towed vehicle which has been lawfully towed and stored consistent with the provisions of General Laws Chapter 266, s. 120D and the provisions of this Ordinance, shall be liable for towing, transportation and storage charges. The person or entity holding such vehicle may hold the vehicle until the registered owner or lawful operator of such vehicle pays such charges. The maximum amount that may be charged for towing, transportation and storage of trespass tows is established by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Department of Public Utilities (DPU) and is delineated in General Laws Chapter 159B, s. 6B. No other charges or fees may be applied.

D) Incomplete Tows - If the owner or lawful operator of such vehicle appears at the trespass tow location to remove such vehicle before the towing is completed, the tow service may charge the owner or lawful operator up to one-half the usual charge for such towing consistent with DPU rules and regulations. In order for any charge to apply, the vehicle must be hooked up to the tow truck or flatbed. A tow truck or flatbed merely appearing at the location prior to the arrival of the vehicle's owner or lawful operator shall not be considered a partial or incomplete tow, and no charges shall apply.

E) Storage Location - Consistent with the provisions of General Laws Chapter 159B, s. 6B, mandating that removed vehicles be stored at a convenient location, vehicles towed as trespass tows shall not be towed or stored outside of the City of Quincy and shall be stored at a location that is a secure location which has safeguards against theft of and from the towed vehicle. The Chief of Police of the Quincy Police Department may, at the Chief's discretion and by written consent, permit storage of trespass tow vehicles outside of the city on a case-by-case basis.

F) Vehicle Retrieval - Vehicle owners shall have the right to retrieve trespass tow vehicles on a 24-hour, seven-day per week basis. In no case, shall a trespass tow operator or entity cause a delay in the return of such vehicle in excess of 30 minutes provided all applicable towing, transportation and storage fees have been paid.

(I) Compliance and Penalties - Any person or entity who purports to authorize the removal from a private property or way in contravention of the provisions of General Laws Chapter 159B, s. 6B is subject to a fine of not more than $100.00 per offense. Any person who removes a vehicle under a trespass tow from a private property or way, or holds such vehicle after its removal, and who has not complied in full with the provisions of this section, shall release such vehicle to its owner or lawful operator without assessing any charges for its removal or storage.

G) Miscellaneous:

1. No entry shall be made by any tow operator into any vehicle towed as a trespass tow unless such entry is reasonably necessary for the safe towing of such vehicle.

2. Tow service operators and entities shall exercise reasonable care to ensure that vehicles towed as trespass tows are not damaged or stolen and to ensure against theft from vehicles while such vehicles are in the custody of such operators and entities.

3. No vehicle shall be towed or placed upon a flatbed vehicle with a person or domestic animal within such vehicle. In instances where a domestic animal is present in such a vehicle, the Animal Control Unit of the police department or the police department shall be notified of the presence of the domestic animal by the tow service operator or entity before commencing a tow.

4. Vehicles owners or lawful operators who are unable to immediately pay the towing and storage fees applicable to a trespass tow shall be afforded by the tow service operator or entity a reasonable single opportunity to retrieve from the vehicle personal property while such vehicle is in the custody of the tow service. Vehicle owners or lawful operators shall not be entitled to remove any parts or items that are mounted to the vehicle.

H) Miscellaneous Procedures:

1. Record-keeping: The Quincy Police Department dispatcher who receives notification of a trespass tow under the provisions of this Ordinance shall enter a record of such tow with all information required under this Ordinance.

2. Tow Suspension: At the discretion of the Chief of Police of the city, all trespass towing may be suspended for a period not to exceed twenty-four (24) hours in the best interest of the orderly operation of the police department and the city.

3. Complaints: Vehicle owners or lawful operators who have reason to believe that their vehicle has been towed, transported or stored in violation of state statute, the Code of Massachusetts Regulations, or of this Ordinance may submit a written complaint to the Quincy Police Department, or to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Department of Public Utilities, with relevant documentation, as follows:

July 10 Public Meeting On Proposed Pot Shop

By SCOTT JACKSON

Ermont will host a public outreach meeting as it begins the process of seeking city and state approval for recreational marijuana sales at its Ricciuti Drive location.

The meeting will be held Wednesday, July 10, beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the Lincoln-Hancock Community School, 300 Granite St.

"Anyone who is concerned about or who has any input on recreational marijuana in the city of Quincy should come," Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said at the June 17th City Council meeting. "We will have a discussion about Ermont's proposal."

Ermont has operated a medical marijuana dispensary at 216 Ricciuti Dr. in West Quincy since October 2016. The community outreach meeting is required as it seeks approval from the state Cannabis Control Commission to offer recreational sales to all adults age 21 and over.

Mayor Thomas Koch in February 2018 introduced an ordinance regulating recreational marijuana sales in the city. The legislation remains pending before the City Council.

The proposed ordinance would require anyone looking to open a marijuana establishment to obtain a special permit from the Zoning Board of Appeals. A community meeting would be required prior to the application being filed. Applicants would also need to sign a host agreement with the mayor; those host agreements would include a community impact fee of up to 3 percent of gross sales payable to the city for up to five years.

Massachusetts voters approved the legalization of recreational marijuana in a November 2016 referendum. Statewide, 53.6 percent of voters backed the measure, and 51 percent of voters in Quincy did so as well. Because a majority of Quincy voters approved the 2016 referendum, the mayor and City Council cannot ban marijuana establishments outright. The city would also be required to license up to seven pot shops – one for every five liquor stores in the city.

PUBLIC NOTICE

PUBLIC NOTICE 2019 – 127

Presently pending in the Ordinance Committee of the Quincy City Council to be passed at a later date:

WHEREAS, the neighborhoods located to the east of Sea Street at its intersection with Peterson Road in the Houghs Neck section of Quincy are predominately residential in use and consist of lots that are uniformly less than ten thousand square feet in size; and

WHEREAS, said neighborhoods are all zoned Residence A, with the exception of three areas devoted to business use located along Sea Street between its intersection with Manet Ave and extending to its end at Brill Field, all as shown on the City of Quincy Ward One Zoning Map; and

WHEREAS, the three areas devoted to business use contain existing businesses, the lots on which said businesses being located each zoned Business B; and

WHEREAS, each of the businesses referenced in the preceding paragraph enjoy protection from current zoning regulations under G.L. c. 40A and our municipal ordinance as pre-existing, non-conforming uses/structures; and

WHEREAS, were these businesses to discontinue their current use, each would have a right to re-develop said premises in accordance with Business B zoning regulations, which regulations allow for the most liberal development of property in terms of both use and density for business purposes – many of which are inconsistent and not harmonious with the residential uses prevalent throughout the Houghs Neck neighborhood; and

WHEREAS, a change in the zoning map creating uniformity throughout the Houghs Neck neighborhood will serve to protect the residential uses prevalent throughout, and will not impair the rights of existing businesses to continue to operate and exist as pre-existing non-conforming uses/structures; and

NOW THEREFORE LET IT BE ORDERED by the Quincy City Council that the zoning classification of the lots delineated on the attached Exhibit A each be changed from Business B to Residence A, thereby creating a uniform zoning district throughout Houghs Neck consistent with the use which predominates: Residential.

In accordance with Chapter 43 Section 23 proposed ordinance change is over eight (8) pages and copies may be obtained in the City Clerk's Office located at 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA Monday thru Friday 8:30 AM – 4:30 PM.

PUBLIC NOTICE

PUBLIC NOTICE 2019 – 125

Presently pending in the Ordinance Committee of the Quincy City Council to be passed at a later date:

BE IT ORDAINED by the City Council of the City of Quincy that Title 18 of the Municipal Code, Environmental Protection, be amended as follows:

Add the following:

18.30 Disposable Plastic Retail Shopping Bags

18.30.010 Purpose. It is the purpose of this Ordinance to achieve a reduction in the use of disposable plastic shopping bags by retail establishments in the city, thereby advancing solid waste reduction, protecting marine ecosystems, protecting waterways, and reducing greenhouse gas emissions. This Ordinance seeks to reduce the number of plastic bags that are being used, discarded and littered, and to promote the use of reusable check-out bags and recyclable paper bags by retail establishments located in the city.

18.30.020 Definitions. The following words shall have the following meanings unless the context clearly requires otherwise:

A. "Disposable plastic shopping bag" shall mean any retail check-out bag made predominantly of plastic, derived either from petroleum, natural gas, or a biologically based source, such as corn or other plant sources, which is provided to the customer at the point of sale. The term, "disposable plastic shopping bag" shall include:

- (1) Degradable plastic bags; and
- (2) Biodegradable plastic bags which are not commercially compostable as well as commercially compostable plastic bags.

The term "disposable plastic shopping bag" shall not include:

- (1) Reusable bags;
- (2) Produce bags; or
- (3) Product bags.

As used in the foregoing definition, the terms "produce bag" or "product bag" shall mean any bag without handles used exclusively to carry produce, meats, seafood or other food items to the point of sale inside a retail store, or used to prevent such items from coming into contact with other purchased items.

B. "Retail check-out bag", shall mean any carry-out bag provided by a retail establishment to a customer at the point of sale. Such bags shall not include:

- (1) Bags, whether plastic or not, in which loose produce or bulk products are placed by the consumer to carry such items to the point of sale or check-out area of a retail establishment;
- (2) Laundry or dry cleaner bags;
- (3) Newspaper bags;
- (4) Bags used to contain or wrap frozen foods, meats or fish, whether pre-packaged or not, to prevent or contain moisture and/or to prevent contamination.

C. "Reusable bag" shall mean a bag that is specifically designed and manufactured for multiple re-use, and is made of either polyester, polypropylene, cotton, or other durable material or composition, and meets the following standards:

- (1) Has a minimum lifetime capability of 125 or more uses carrying 22 or more pounds; and
- (2) Is machine washable or is made of material which can be cleaned or disinfected a minimum of 125 times.

D. "Recyclable paper bag" shall mean a paper bag which is 100 percent recyclable and contains at least 40 percent post-consumer recycled content and displays the words: "Recyclable" and "Made from 40% post-consumer recyclable content" in a visible manner on the exterior of such bag.

E. "Retail establishment" shall mean any commercial enterprise, whether for or not for profit, including, but not limited to: restaurants, pharmacies, convenience stores, grocery stores, liquor stores, seasonal and temporary businesses, jewelry stores, and household goods stores.

When not inconsistent with the context, words in the singular number include the plural. The word "shall" is always mandatory and not merely directory.

18.30.030 Disposable Plastic Shopping Bags Prohibited. No retail establishment shall provide a disposable plastic shopping bag to any customer for the purpose of enabling the customer to carry away goods from the point of sale. No provision of this Ordinance shall be read to preclude any establishment from offering reusable bags to customers for sale to customers or utilizing recyclable bags at check-out.

18.30.040 Penalties and Enforcement. The penalty for violation of the provisions of this Ordinance by an establishment, following the issuance of a written warning notice to the establishment, shall be $50.00, and $100.00 for each subsequent violation. A warning notice for an initial violation shall provide at least 14 days for correction of such violation. No fine for a second or continuing violation shall be issued until at least 14 days after a warning is issued. This Ordinance may be enforced by any police officer or any agent of the city's Health Department, or by the License Commission.

This Ordinance shall take effect 60 days after its enactment.

A copy of this order may be examined at the Office of the City Clerk, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA Monday through Friday during regular working hours 8:30 A.M. to 4:30 P.M.

'Baron Of Beacon Hill: John Hancock' Lecture Saturday At Adams Academy

"The Baron of Beacon Hill: John Hancock", a lecture by William M. Fowler, Jr., at the Quincy Historical Society, will be followed by the Hancock Carriage Display at the Dorothy Quincy Homestead, Saturday, June 29.

The public is invited to hear the story of the son of an early Braintree (later Quincy) minister who became one of Boston's great merchant princes as well as a legendary statesman. He leads a Revolution, signs a sacred American document and is several times elected governor of the Commonwealth.

On Saturday, June 29, William M. Fowler, Jr., former director of the Massachusetts Historical Society, Distinguished Professor of History, Emeritus at Northeastern University, and noted author, will give the lecture: "The Baron of Beacon Hill: John Hancock" at the Quincy Historical Society. The lecture will be held at the site of the former Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy, from 10:30 a.m. to noon.

Parking is available at the rear of the building.

WILLIAM M. FOWLER, Jr. with the restored Hancock carriage. The carriage will be available for viewing at The Dorothy Quincy Homestead, 34 Butler Rd., Quincy on Saturday, June 29 from 12:30 to 2 p.m. Earlier that same day, from 10:30 a.m. to noon, Fowler will give a lecture entitled "The Baron of Beacon Hill: John Hancock," at the Quincy Historical Society, 8 Adams St., Quincy.

After the lecture, plan to visit The Dorothy Quincy Homestead, 34 Butler Rd., Quincy, to view the historic Hancock chariot that was lovingly restored and sits in the property's coach house. The chariot was built in England c. 1777, was captured by American privateers and presented to John Hancock.

After Hancock's death, the chariot passed to Dorothy Quincy Hancock's niece and eventually was inherited by Eliza Wendell Quincy Clapp who was living in Portland, ME. Converted to a horse-drawn sleigh in the 19th century, it was given to the NSCDA-MA by family descendants and conserved in 2014 with a grant from the Quincy Community Preservation Committee. The coach house will be open from 12:30 to 2 p.m.

The lecture is sponsored by the Quincy Homestead

Committee, The National Society of The Colonial Dames in The Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and is co-hosted by the Quincy Historical Society.

The Quincy Homestead is owned by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and is operated by the Department of Conservation (DCR) and the NSCDA-MA.

The lecture is free and open to the public.

A Job Well Done

ing money payment for various reasons, such as late fees or failure to pay a ticket. The demand may be followed by the threat of the Police coming to your home or a warrant being issued for your arrest. This is followed by instructions on how to make payment, usually by buying gift cards.

Sometimes the scammers will leave a message for you to call a number for further instructions and if you don't call, you will be arrested. When you call the number, a recording may say that no one is available to answer your call or the message service is full. The scammers make note of your telephone number and then call back to expand the scam, demanding payments over and over.

IMPORTANT! The Quincy Police Department does not call people to tell them that they owe money. Police departments are not collection agencies. As for spoofing, there is little that can be done about it at this time, but if it is a recording demanding payment, just hang up.

Keep in mind, if "Quincy Police" shows up in your ID window, it is recommended that you pick up the call to check if it is the Quincy Police Department. If in doubt about the content of the message, be sure to call Quincy Police Communications and tell them what happened. They can quickly confirm or uncover the credibility of the call.

For further information, contact me, Lieutenant Dan Minton at 617-745-5719.
